With G. E. Mortimore

WELL, why shouldn't there be a Wendigo on the Forbidden Plateau?

Mrs. T. G. S. Chambers of Forbidden Plateau Lodge writes disagreeing with something I had in this column the other day.

My piece was about Avis Walton's forthcoming musical play "The Wendigo of the Forbidden Plateau." I pointed out that the Wendigo, a legendary spirit monster, had nothing to do with the Indians of British Columbia.

It was an imported Ojibway monster from Ontario. Why, then, did Avis choose to build a play around it? Mrs. Chambers replies as follows:

"Having been the first person to tell Avis about the Plateau and its many legends, and having read and re-read her... play, which she took endless trouble to have as accurate as possible, even though it necessarily is fantasy, I naturally take a great interest in it.

"Mr. Mortimore is quite right in saying that the Wendigo is a monster in Eastern Canada, but why should he stay there? There are Abominable Snowmen in the Himalayas and there are the Sasquatches at Harrison Lake and the Forbidden Plateau as well as in Quebec.

"The Comox Indians have many tales to tell of weird calls, like a loon's being heard on the Plateau. There are genuine loons there... they have been seen by my husband at Panther Lake and McKenzie Lake. There are also legends about enormous footprints.

"Take the footprints and the loon call together, on a... windy night and behold... the Wendigo appears.

"Mr. Mortimore suggests that the present owner of the Lodge came from the East and brought the Wendigo with him. I know the wise men came from the East, but in this case neither the present owner nor the three preceding ones, as far as I know, came from that direction.

"The original owners and the present ones are strictly from B.C., and they found these tales were already in existence.

"Doug Nixon produced a series of Canadian Yarns over a Vancouver radio station some time in the 1940s and devoted one of them to the Forbidden Plateau.

"He mentions a race of huge hairy giants dwelling in subterranean caverns at the top of the highest peaks. He also says:

"The Wendigo leaves terrifically large footprints. Perhaps you saw the newspaper reports last year stating that Indians in Ontario and Quebec saw the footprints of the Wendigo upon numerous occasions in the northern country.

"In the Daily Colonist for Feb. 8, 1948, there is a story of the Legend of the Plateau, mentioning the race of giants who are supposed to have inhabited the caves of Mount Albert Edward and carried off many people.

"What more natural than to name these monsters the Wendigo?

"Another story on the Forbidden Plateau was broadcast over CBC Halifax Theatre on Jan. 14, 1956, in the form of a play by Edgar D. Smith called 'Which Calls in the Night.'

"Mr. Smith, who I understood was a resident of Victoria, makes his theme... the story of a bride on her honeymoon being snatched away by a Wendigo.

"These legends should not prevent anyone... from visiting the Plateau. Its beauty is there for all to see, its lakes are teeming with fish... its flowers and its pink snow are worthy subjects for the finest photographers.

"Sasquatches and Wendigos are now under control. They no longer leave their footprints or call in the night. So why shouldn't Avis... write a play about them which is all pure phantasy?"

Why not? It's a free country. There is no tax on visions and monsters. While we're at it, we might also conjure up a banshee, a zombie, a phantom drummer, Dracula, the three witches and the ghost of Ann Boleyn, and turn them loose in the lodge during an after-ski party.

Meat, Cancer Link?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government is about to take a "new look" at the widespread use of a synthetic female sex hormone to fatten up cattle and poultry.

The hormone drug, diethylstilbestrol or more commonly called "stilbestrol," is known to cause cancer of the breast in man when taken in large doses, food and drug commissioner George P. Larrick said.

The food and drug administration stopped issuing any new permits for use of stilbestrol after the last session of Congress banned food additives found to induce cancer.

However, the law makes no provision for rescinding permits of those with prior sanction to use stilbestrol.

Larrick said there was no cause for alarm. He said he was still eating meat and chicken, and "feeding it to my children and grandchildren."

Discontent In Union Long-Standing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Interference by the international in union local affairs started discontent as far back as 1951, business agent Norman Edlison of Ironworkers Local 97 said Wednesday.

Edlison is being tried by the union with financial secretary Tom McGrath and president Fernand Whitmore on charges of conducting an unauthorized strike in B.C. last summer.

Lone Angry Dissenter As Tories Roar 'Yea'

OTTAWA (UPI)—A lone angry voice was heard from the convention floor yesterday as the national Conservative Association breezed through a 14-point policy program with a roar of "yeas."

Norman Baker of New Westminster, a member of the city association but not a convention delegate, protested that the resolutions placed before the meeting were not "indicative of the grass-roots support of this party."

His argument that the 14 resolutions should be considered individually and not en masse failed, however, when no one else in the hall would second his motion.

None of the resolutions, which included support for a national flag, a civil service inquiry and further investigation into the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, was discussed by the general meeting.

Baker, a 37-year-old contractor, told newsmen he was "quite disappointed" that no one had supported him.

Cabinet's Relations With Public 'Poor'

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet Wednesday was handed a gentle reproof by the Progressive-Conservative Association for poor public relations in the announcement of government policy.

The report said the committee "does insist that the cabinet owes an obligation to prepare its announcements in a fashion designed to be readily understood. We were not satisfied that this was being done in all cases."

Too Old To Patch

YEAR by year for two decades successive councils at the city hall have received reports from their engineering, building, lighting and other staffs that the structure was unsafe, obsolete with regard to the needs and gravely in breach of the city's own bylaws on public safeguards. The current report by City Engineer Garnett, specifically asked to review the matter, bears out all that has been said before and adds climactic comment. He states that it would cost $500,000 to rehabilitate the old building by removing its present disabilities and adding the necessary extension. Even if that were done Victoria would have at best a makeshift result which might serve only for another few years, with satisfaction neither to its occupants nor the public which must go there.

The time is surely at hand when this community will have to face up to that situation. The present city hall has had its upper storey closed off for years; its larger rooms partitioned into cubicles; its public hallways narrowed, and its remaining space so circumscribed that citizens need a guide to find some offices in the building. Short of rebuilding the ageing structure at a cost of half a million dollars and without any guarantee of satisfaction, minimum emergency repairs are about all that can be attempted to keep it in service. While one is aware that the city is closing a busy period in which it replaced Point Ellice Bridge, rebuilt its fire headquarters, and did a considerable amount of other work on parking lots and streets, the city hall issue is becoming urgent and cannot much longer be put off. There is in existence meanwhile the main layout of the town planning commission, where the provincial government is now about to lay the foundations of Victoria's new courthouse. On an excellent site at Cathedral Hill the plan calls for the development of a rounded out and complete community centre; with auditorium, courthouse, city hall, possibly a museum, and other community buildings.

Either this town plan as presented should be acted upon uniformly, or else the community should provide itself with another. The Province is going ahead with its construction on the understanding that the designed town plan will be followed. So as well as the urgent need for a new city hall there is waiting a well-chosen site. There can be little real question about the need, it has been self-evident for many years. The difficulty may centre around the financing of a new city hall, which obviously will cost a considerable sum. But construction costs are not likely to lessen, and each year's delay may leave a bigger bill to pay when replacement is begun. Here obviously is an urgent problem for the immediate future.

On Top of Their Jobs

TEN Royal Canadian Navy divers have come back from Alaskan waters after performing a notable feat. They sank to the bottom of the sea, 175 feet down, in temperatures below the fresh water freezing point, testing out new diving equipment which increases underwater mobility and provides a resistance against cold. The experiment was wholly successful.

The mass dive is reported to have established a world's record in this realm. That is gratifying but a lesser factor. So many world's records of one kind and another are set up almost daily nowadays that many such marks have lost meaning. The dive could be classified as a stunt because of its spectacular nature, but its purpose was a serious one and this is the criterion. It was to improve and forward the techniques and skill of naval divers and their equipment and store up knowledge against the day of action.

That is the lesson of this diving accomplishment in cold and strange waters. Ships ride the waves but navy men have to be prepared to go below the waves come such an emergency. The diving squad at Esquimalt headed by Lt.-Cmdr. Ackerman does not sport itself in skin or wet suits just for the fun of walking the bottom of ocean but to train itself for the clearance and other sub-surface operations that might fall to its lot in war.

One other deduction might be made, and it is that in the Pacific Command there is resource, imagination, and an enthusiasm and devotion which do the RCN credit. Canada's navy may be small when set alongside those of the major powers but its liveliness of mind does not suffer by any comparison. This little experiment in Alaskan waters, world's record or not, is a reminder that our men in navy blue are on top of their jobs, afloat on the surface or down in the depths at a range of 175 feet.

Warped Emotionalism

THE case of the 14-year-old boy in Ontario sentenced to hang for murder provides a prime example of the way in which maudlin emotionalism can submerge reason. The ultimate fate of the boy has no bearing whatever on the question of whether or not capital punishment should be abolished in Canada.

It has been made perfectly clear that whatever happens this boy who now stands convicted of murder will not be put to death. Therefore the issue of whether capital punishment is right or wrong in a civilized society is beside the point. There has been a stay of execution so that an appeal could be launched from the conviction by the jury. If a new trial should produce a verdict of not guilty he will go free; if his guilt should be confirmed both the prime minister and the minister of justice have stated that sentence will be commuted, as has been done for almost all murderers sentenced to hang in the last three years.

The question which will be debated in Parliament during the coming session is not whether the death penalty is right or wrong for a 14-year-old but whether it is right or wrong for society to condemn anyone to death for the crime of murder. Interjecting the Ontario case into the discussion serves only to confuse and mislead.

Two-Way Trip Confusing

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE Bombay incident involving an American marine and the Communist Chinese consulate gains international importance in view of President Eisenhower's forthcoming attempt to increase U.S. influence in India.

Eisenhower leaves Thursday on a 23,000-mile goodwill tour in which his main stop will be New Delhi and his main talks will be with Prime Minister Nehru. In the light of the growing coolness between India and Red China, the timing of the trip could not be more opportune.

But in Eisenhower's enlargement of personal diplomacy there is a danger of a boomerang. China is not likely to stand by while Eisenhower woos the neutral Indians. If some international incident could be promoted that would discredit Eisenhower and the U.S., Peking would lose no time in promoting it.

The story of the Bombay incident, as received in Washington, reads like mystery fiction.

A Chinese official, Chang Chien-Yu, seeks refuge in the U.S. consulate. Because of a party in the consulate, he is taken to a remote cottage for overnight safety and placed in custody of a young marine sergeant, Robert Armstrong.

The next morning Chang has some second thoughts about his defection; tells Armstrong he wants to go back to the U.S. consulate, but somehow gets the taxi driver to take them instead to the Chinese consulate.

Apparently in Chinese possession is a tape-recording of a statement Chang made to U.S. officers. How Chang was able to keep it is not made clear.

On arrival at the Chinese consulate, Chang leaps out. The marine sergeant leaps out after him, apparently in an attempt to recover the tape recording. In so doing the sergeant is captured, bound and held by the Chinese for six hours until released at the request of Indian officials.

SOME men retire and bore themselves away. Others are retired and feel frustrated because they think themselves able to carry on for further years.

A fixed age limit does not separate the dull from the alert.

A legislative committee of New York State has been studying the problem of retirement, and the Rotarian prints the views of well-known senior citizens who were consulted on the subject.

Here are some extracts, necessarily brief:

Arthur J. Toynbee, the British historian, says that early retirement permits people to occupy important positions while they are in their prime; but cites as an alternative retention in posts less exacting during the last stages of working life.

"If I had a formula for long life," he adds, "it would be to be keenly interested in questions that will arise long after one is dead."

For his part Ed Wynn, the stage and movie comedian, is opposed to retirement solely because of age. For him the determining factor is the capacity of a person for accomplishment.

"As an analogy let us take the brand-new tires placed on an automobile in the Indianapolis road race. They are changed several times during the race not because of age, but because they are worn out."

The American composer and music critic, Deems Taylor, thinks that a policy of compulsory retirement at age 65 "is wasteful and stupid," based as it is on the assumption that all humans age at the same rate. He has some advice for those facing retirement, however, to wit:

"Don't let that grim 'sixty-five' panic you. As a famous psychiatrist once said to me, 'Remember that we live by a system of time that we ourselves invented.' You are as old as you think and feel; and never mind the statisticians waving the calendar at you."

Jawaharlal Nehru, the prime minister of India, weaves a philosophic thought around the subject. He thinks that every person, whatever his age, should have some function in life. If that function wholly goes, then life ceases to have any meaning.

"Life is not merely a question of years, but of what is put into it," he says.

Himself retired although still concerned with science and invention, I. I. Sikorsky, aeronautical engineer and designer, believes that the retirement age of between 65 and 68 for men; and perhaps five years less for women, appears reasonable. Yet...

"Creativity does not necessarily decline with age. Beyond the age of 60, to be sure, all processes, including mental processes, appear to slow down somewhat. This however seems to be accompanied in a great number of cases by the accumulation of experience and wisdom."

A last word, from Archibald MacLeish, the American poet and playwright: "I don't think generalizations about senility are very helpful to anyone but the generalizer. It may help the authorities to establish the rule that all men are senile at 65 and dead at 70, but that doesn't make the rule either true or wise."

"Come on, lover, let's leap!"

Reports from Ottawa

THE "image" of Canada that government tourist officials have long cultivated in the minds of Americans is an image of the great outdoors, full of moose, Mounties, mountains and muskies.

At the federal provincial tourist conference here last week travel bureau chief Alan Field explained his plan — first outlined to a Commons committee on June 8 — to overlay this moose- and Mountie image with a new image.

Field will spend a million dollars on advertising next year to tell Americans that Canada "is a place where you can find pleasant, well-equipped, well-appointed hotels, where you can get a good meal, where you can see a show, and you will not have a moose looking over your shoulder."

It is to be an image of a nation rich in the good things of life, a nation with modern cities, great industries, excellent transportation, fine recreation facilities, and a place of interesting people and events. For the sportsmen there'll still be moose and muskies. For the romantics there'll still be Mounties and mountains. But for the more sophisticated, a new Canada, or at least a new impression of Canada, will be dashed up.

Without disparaging the purpose of this image-creation, which is simply to persuade more Americans to spend their vacation dollars in Canada, I suggest that a new image would be of much greater value and importance for other reasons.

We've been complaining for years that Americans are ignorant of Canada, that their ideas of Canada are screwy in the extreme, and that U.S. papers carry little news about Canada.

What else could we expect, with the kind of image in the American mind that we partly created, and partly let go unchallenged?

Art Without Standards

By GREGORY CLARK

AFTER years of violent protest against modern music in all its forms (jazz, atonal, twelve-tone) and modern art in all its shapes (non-representational, abstract) I have now accepted a perfectly reasonable explanation of modern music and art. Why should people, perhaps the great majority of the listening public, be confined to harmonious music when they are tone deaf? Why should people who can't even draw a cup and saucer be dominated by the laws of visual exactitude?

Next time you are at lunch with a few friends, pass the menus around and ask each one to draw a cup and saucer, which objects are there before them in full view. What a mess they make of it!

Next time you stand up in a public gathering where God Save the Queen is sung, listen to the bellows and bawls, all off key, of six out of 10 of your fellow patriots.

What modern music and modern art are, actually, is a revolt of the tone-deaf, the visually paralyzed, the color blind, and a great variety of otherwise handicapped persons who respond most joyously to a sort of music and a kind of art that no longer requires any standards.

After centuries of eclecticism, we are now free to whoop'er up, without regard to any rules. Let yourself go is the slogan in the arts; and that, of course, includes all of us who aren't artists. It's a free world, at last. Anybody can hoot and holler.

Doctor Shocked

There has recently been a considerable amount of research in the study of "trace mineral elements" in the soil. These elements, usually in very minute amounts, appear in the water supplies of the world and vary considerably from place to place. They play a very important part in the economy and well-being of both plant and animal life.

We all know that iodine, which occurs in minute quantities as iodide, plays an essential role in the prevention of goitre; hence its addition to our household table salt in areas of short supply. Other elements, too, like phosphorus, calcium, iron, boron, magnesium and potassium, etc., are important, through the medium of water, both in plant and animal life. Gardeners tell us that plants, vegetables and trees cannot thrive without some or all of these.

Fluorine in the form of a salt fluoride is one of these "trace elements." Unfortunately, like iodine it is "spotty" in its distribution: in some areas, as in this part of Vancouver Island, it is absent or very nearly so. It has been scientifically proved that its function is to harden our bones and especially the enamel of our teeth. That will explain why there is such a lot of destructive caries in our children's teeth despite the high standard of living and nutrition.

In some 35 years of practice in this community I have been amazed and shocked to find so few of our children and young adults with perfect teeth. I feel that this condition can well be correlated to the entire absence of fluoride in our local water supply. It seems to be a matter of common sense to add this "trace element" in appropriate amounts to compensate for its absence.

Some people are worried because fluoride is said to be a poison. What nonsense! "Poison" is really a relative term depending upon the amount of material ingested. Tea, coffee, alcohol, and many other foods and drinks under this definition could be classified as such.

Let us not forget that fluoridation is a great public health measure.

D. M. BAILLIE, M.D.

5451 Alderley Road, R.R. 2, Royal Oak.

Organized Campaign

The plethora of pseudo scientific letters against fluoridation would make it appear that a well organized campaign is being carried on by those opposed to the measure. In contrast, many of us in favor of it hesitate to speak up because we feel that our lack of technical qualification prohibits us from so doing.

It has been interesting therefore to note that our own dental and medical authorities, to whom we turn in times of need have expressed their firm support of fluoridation and its lasting benefits. Surely their opinions should carry far more weight than those from somewhat questionable foreign sources.

I sincerely hope the great majority of voters will allow themselves to be guided by the considered opinion of our own medical men rather than by quite unsubstantiated lay "evidence." It will require every "pro" vote on polling day if this measure is to succeed.

D. ANGUS.

National Standards

Mr. Hartley states in his letter of Nov. 28 headed "National Standards," "it is unthinkable that a Canadian firm, or Canadians, would consider for one moment substituting the standards of any foreign country." Does Mr. Hartley realize that Canadian firms, unless they are large combines, are forced to look outside Canada for machinery to supply their needs as they just do not exist within her borders?

To give a specific example, the only Canadian-made machine available for the packaging of 80-ounce cartons of milk, which is the size most sought after by the consumer, is too large, too expensive and requires more milk than can be produced by any but the large combines. Hence the smaller dairy, who once retailed his milk in bottles, now fast becoming obsolete except in home deliveries, must, in order to compete, look outside Canada for suitable machinery to fill his needs.

I therefore maintain that the time has not arrived for any too hard and fast rules to be made over the packaging of food. Standardization is something to aim for and when the Canadian machines are available then is the time to issue orders-in-council to enforce their use.

(Mrs.) BARBARA HUNT.

Wonderful Bargains

How amusing it is to hear one of the arguments propounded by the diehard anti-fluoridation group that the expense of this great health measure may involve waste in fluoridating water that will never be consumed.

The facts are that the cost is insignificant, witness the cost figures published by the department of health: Prince George, 10 cents per person per year; Kelowna, 17 cents; Prince Rupert, 21 cents; Smithers, 6 cents.

In Victoria, on the advice of our water commissioner, this cost may run as high as 28 cents per person per year. What a wonderful bargain to reduce our dental costs by 60 per cent.

A. R. MARSHALL.

122 Kipling Place.

Unfounded Charges

The opponents of fluoridation speak of "feeding rat poison to children" and "violating the rights of the individual."

The first of these charges is unimportant since toxicologists cannot be found to support the ridiculous assertion that the one-to-one-million ratio of fluoride used in water treatment is a hazard to health.

The second charge merits consideration since the only practical method of treatment requires fluoridation of the entire water supply of the community.

It is interesting to note that no option is extended in the case of chlorination. The difference seems to be that, whereas many thousands have died of typhus and cholera, few succumb to toothache. Presumably, therefore, society as a whole is charged with the preservation of life but the right to wear false teeth remains that of the individual.

The efficacy and safety of fluoridation have been proven to the satisfaction of all informed and thinking men. It is unfortunate that the most vociferous among us are seldom informed and seldom bother to think.

Exterminated for the Good Life

Wildlife Riches Squandered

By GREGORY CLARK

This book might better have been called "Wild Death in America" for it is the first over-all history of the white man's effect on all life, fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals of the North American continent.

It describes and documents, as does no other book I have yet encountered, the utterly incredible riches of wildlife of all sorts that inhabited our continent upon the arrival of the first white settlers in the sixteenth century.

The smashing tragedy the book relates, outdoors, in a sense, the human tragedy that so engrosses us; since to date we have not exterminated the human race.

The record of what we have exterminated in our pursuit of the good life in North America is here set forth for the first time in the calm tones of a research man. Peter Matthiessen, studied biology and ornithology at Yale but took up writing as a career. He was one of the founders and editors of The Paris Review, and has written two novels.

But wildlife has been his avocation all his life. As all students of wildlife know, there has been no systematic research on the whole picture of the effect of the white man on the life he found on this continent.

WILDLIFE IN AMERICA,
by Peter Matthiessen, Macmillan of Canada; $11.

Matthiessen reminds us that the buffalo was a familiar resident of the woods and wild meadows as far east as the New England states; that the elk or wapiti, now reduced to last-stand herds in the foothills of the far west, was distributed all over the continent, as were cougars, bears; and the skies of America, from Atlantic to Pacific, were patterned with such flocks of birds, especially the shore birds, geese and ducks, that our forefathers were literally humbled by the boundless splendors of the life, fertility and promise of the new world.

Matthiessen tells the story without malice; but irony coils up from every page, like sulphur smoke.

Not Only Crooks Cheat

Most persons asked in random questioning didn't know how much money a week they would receive in insurance benefits if they were to lose their jobs. They didn't know how long they would be paid benefits if they were unable to find new jobs, didn't even know offhand how much they were paying for insurance.

These answers were typical:

"WHAT I PAID IN"

"I would get out what I paid in, wouldn't I? They'd stop paying me when it ran out."

"Haven't a clue. I've never lost my job, and I don't expect to."

"Gee, I don't know. Far as I'm concerned, it's just another of those things that come off your cheque. Like income tax."

NOT TOO SURE

Even the exceptions were not too sure about how much money, in all, they could receive. They were really sure only that the people of the Unemployment Insurance Commission could work it out correctly.

The people at the UIC like to compare unemployment insurance with fire insurance or automobile insurance.

(Maybe you do pay in year after year, they say, but if you never have occasion to collect, you ought to be glad.)

ASKS THE PRICE

But with fire insurance or automobile insurance, the buyer specifies what he wants and then asks the price. With unemployment insurance, the price is all he may ever know. He doesn't receive a policy, far less a sales pitch. And if he did receive a policy and read it, he probably would trade confusion for more confusion.

He would learn, as every applicant for benefits learns in the "Direction to Report and Information for Claimants," that to qualify for payment he must:

NEW BENEFIT PERIOD

"Be able to establish a new benefit period by having (i) 30 contribution weeks in the last 104 weeks; (ii) eight of these contribution weeks in the last 52 weeks or since your last benefit period began, whichever is the shorter period; however, if you are making your new claim less than 104 weeks after the commencement date of your last claim (iii) at least 24 of the 30 contribution weeks must be in the 52 weeks before your new claim, or since the commencement date of your last claim, whichever is the longer period."

He could find from a simple table how much money a week he could expect—something he probably doesn't know now, unless he's a keen reader of federal statutes. (It ranges from $6 to $27 a week, depending on average weekly contribution, for a person without dependants; from $8 to $26 for a person with a dependant. The fine print about dependants and average weekly contributions presumably would be in the policy, too.)

HOW MANY WEEKS

Then he would just have to figure out how many weeks of benefit he had coming to him:

Failing to obtain employment, the policy would say, he could obtain not more than 52 times the weekly rate applicable to him multiplied by one-half of the number of his contribution weeks within the period described in (i) of the eligibility clause if the last part of the clause didn't apply to him, or within the longer of the periods described in the last part of the clause, whichever was the lesser amount. But it wouldn't be worded that simply, and it would go on, becoming even more complicated, to the bewildering ifs, ands and buts of the seasonal benefits payable from December to May.

Obviously, policies like this wouldn't sell like hats at a 9 a.m. special, and it's not surprising that most of the "insured" appear to think of unemployment insurance vaguely as a sort of taxation for welfare.

The one thing that many think they do know is that they and their employers have put "a lot of money" into unemployment insurance over the years.

The natural urge to get some of it back, combined with misunderstanding, appears to be one of the chief causes of abuse of unemployment insurance.

The next article will describe some of the common abuses.

Children Padded Payroll

OTTAWA (CP) — The father had his six children on the payroll of his logging operation, all covered by unemployment insurance.

The boys, down to a 12-year-old, were listed as lumberjacks. A 13-year-old girl was down as cook for 50 loggers in a woods camp. By the time unemployment insurance investigators caught on and had the parent jailed for six months, the family treasury had been fraudulently fattened by a sizable amount.

Paddle's Back in School

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI)—The board of education looked askance at the British switch and knuckle-rapping method of maintaining classroom decorum.

Wont do. Too foreign. Must have something completely American.

both feared and revered in U.S. institutions of higher learning—the paddle.

The decision made, the board members smiled, relaxed and dwelt upon their latest contribution to the field of education. They had decided to restore corporal punishment for ill-behaved students and the instrument of application.

One board member recalled there already was a paddle in the Stamford school system. This might be the answer—a precedent to length, thickness, handle dimensions, the works.

Then someone asked: "what size paddle should be used?" The debate resumed.

One faction, perhaps recalling the spine-tingling dignity-shattering lengths of pine board they were introduced to during their college fraternity days, quickly spoke up in favor of the size of a ping-pong paddle.

Another group favored something a little larger, but no more than a quarter of an inch in thickness.

What about the length? Well, it shouldn't be too long and, of course, it shouldn't be too short.

But it soon learned that the paddle was in the office of the school psychologist, Kermit Shulman, and that he considered it a psychological weapon unsuited for practical application.

Shulman's paddle, nailed over his office door, measured about 12 inches in length, three to four wide and one quarter inch thick. It bore the legend: "for applied psychology" and "grip here firmly in case of frustration."

The board then decided to cogitate on the paddle problem for a week.

Never Too Old for School Says New Chiropractor

A person is never too old to go back to school.

That is the opinion of Dr. J. T. Beesley, a native Victorian, who four years ago at 33 years of age, decided to become a chiropractor. He opened an office here this week.

"I found it a bit difficult to study at first, but at the chiropractic school I attended in the U.S. one of the students was 74 years old and he was doing all right," Dr. Beesley said yesterday.

He returned to Victoria after having served during the Second World War with the merchant navy and having lived in South Africa, New Zealand and Australia.

After the war he worked with the fire department in Durban, an airline in Sydney, Australia, an engineering company in Auckland, New Zealand, and an aircraft manufacturing firm at Malton, Ont.

Shortly after his return to Canada in 1952 he became interested in becoming a chiropractor and started his studies in 1954.

AN EXTENSION PHONE!

Just about the nicest gift any husband ever thought of

And just about the nicest gift any wife or family ever received. It's different, exciting and its pleasure increases every day. And it's so easy to give an extension phone. You can pick up a gift-boxed phone at the Telephone Company, already to put under the tree. Or, for Christmas secrecy, have it delivered to your office. The extension phone will be installed, free of charge, shortly after Christmas.

How to give an Extension Phone for Christmas:

The only charge is for regular telephone service, each month — $1.25 (free installation). One of the attractive features of this gift of service is that you may give it for as long a period as you wish. Many people give it for 1 year. This would come to $15.00. You may pre-pay this or have the $1.25 added to your own telephone bill each month. An especially lovely gift is a coloured extension phone. To give this, there is an additional one-time charge of $12.00. This may also be paid by installment charges on your own telephone bill.

Exported Gas Fattens Profit

Ike Laughs At Charge By Reporter

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday brushed aside a reporter's query concerning reports that a United States company will make large profits by importing Canadian natural gas.

Sarah McClendon of the El Paso, Tex., Times suggested at his press conference that the U.S. government should investigate a report that Midwestern Gas Transmission Co. will make a $16,000,000 profit by increasing rates "at the expense of the Midwestern consumers for bringing gas in from Canada."

Asked whether he will launch an inquiry, Eisenhower replied, lightly: "Will you remind me to do that?"

The crowded press conference broke into general laughter.

Midwestern has received permission from the federal power commission to import 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily from Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. at Emerson, Man. Trans-Canada now is seeking export approval from Canada's new national energy board.

Algeria

Canada Urges Soft-Sell

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States, Britain and Canada Wednesday urged the so-called soft-sell to end the five-year war between France and the Algerian rebels.

Wallace B. Nesbitt, vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation, suggested "to refrain from intervening at this delicate stage by way of a formal resolution."

Nesbitt's words were in line with the opinions of U.S. and British spokesmen.

Farmers' Plea

Insurance Of Crops Requested

Crop insurance and milk prices were the main topics on the agenda yesterday as 150 delegates concluded the two-day convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

The convention, which acts for about 17,000 farmers throughout the province, called for the provincial government to establish a system of crop insurance because "it would be of great benefit to agriculture."

WARNING IGNORED

The resolution passed unanimously, despite a warning from federation manager Charles E. Walls that delegates "should know what they are getting into."

Mr. Walls said the scheme, now in effect in Manitoba, requires farmers to pay 80 per cent of the cost and the provincial government the other 20 per cent. It should first be determined, he said, whether or not the majority of B.C. farmers wish to take this on.

IMPROVEMENT

However, he added that it was his understanding that prairie farmers considered the overall scheme better than their hail insurance.

Earlier, delegates called on the B.C. Milk Board to reimpose consumer price control on milk throughout the province because "present regulations have proven unsatisfactory in that they have not eliminated competition at the consumer level, which has a detrimental effect on the industry." The consumer price controls were removed in 1953.

EGG MARKETING

Among other resolutions approved at yesterday's closing sessions were:

To provide legislation for more orderly marketing of eggs.

To put a stop to unfair price-cutting of agricultural items in stores.

Establishment of a soil test laboratory on the lower mainland.

Investigation of reports that some farm lands are being wrongly assessed for municipal income tax purposes.

Fluoridation Backed By Labor Council

Victoria Labor Council delegates last night voted overwhelmingly in favor of fluoridation of the Greater Victoria water supply. Only one delegate spoke against the motion. Percy Rayment said the public at large is being asked to assume parents' responsibility.

Nominations

Election Deadline Today

Nominations will close today in an election battle that has already become one of the hardest-fought in years in Victoria.

Closing of nominations at 2 p.m. is expected to see two school trustees re-elected by acclamation, 12 candidates in the fight for four council seats, and Mayor Percy B. Scurrell and J. Donald Smith, M.L.A. in a duel for the mayoralty. But—beyond these expectations—there is a possibility until the last second of further entries.

Announced candidates for the four aldermanic seats are:

Aldermen M. H. Mooney, Geoffrey Edgell, Mrs. Lily Wilson and D. J. Proudfoot, the incumbents.

Alan E. Bigelow, lawyer; John D. Carlow, ambulance owner-operator; Bruce Passmore, automobile dealer, and Victor W. Williams, service station operator. These four are running with Mr. Smith, endorsed by the newly founded Victoria Civic Voters' Association.

James A. Dinsmore, retired electrician; Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church; Elgin Neish, commercial fisherman, and Mrs. Sally Rogers, housewife.

Medical, Dental Groups Ban Fluoridation Debate

Victoria Medical Society and Victoria Dental Association last night refused to allow two of their members to debate fluoridation with a Seattle anti-fluoridationist who spoke here recently.

In a joint statement the two associations said their executives had ruled that "a debate would serve no useful purpose at this time."

Spokesmen for the organizations declined to elaborate. The challenge came from Dr. F. B. Exner, a Seattle radio-

Owner of Pool Property To Fight Expropriation

DUNCAN—The owner of property here—North Cowichan municipality is expropriating—because firemen built a swimming pool on part of it—will take her case to the Supreme Court today.

She is Mrs. Hattie Kier who now lives in Vancouver, but owns a small piece of land fronting on Clements Street, with the rear boundary abutting the firehall property which faces Duncan Street.

By mistake the firemen built a pool on what they thought was their property, but the back fence proved to be out of line and a portion of the pool was within Mrs. Kier's land.

North Cowichan council started proceedings to get a thin slice of the land. Mrs. Kier is represented by Beamish and Woods of Burnaby. Appearing for the municipality will be Duncan lawyer David Williams.

Hamilton Vote

Postmen To Strike If Necessary

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton letter carriers have voted in favor of a work stoppage if necessary to back up demands for an increase in salary.

After the meeting, a spokesman said no stoppage is planned locally at this time. The result of the ballot will be made available to the letter carriers' national office if and when a country-wide vote is taken.

Last week the Hamilton branch of the Canadian Postal Employees Association voted in favor of a stoppage to back up wage demands.

Elks Club Conviction Quashed in Duncan

DUNCAN—County Court Judge Arnold Hanna yesterday quashed a conviction and $1,000 fine against the Lake Cowichan Elks Club on a technicality.

Appeal lawyers David Williams of Duncan and Angelo Branca of Vancouver charged after the trial that the Crown had failed to prove to the court the existence of regulations governing the keeping of guest books.

The Elks Club had been charged with failing to keep correct records of guests and their sponsors allowed into the licensed premises July 6.

They were convicted and fined by Magistrate A. L. Anderson at Lake Cowichan. Crown prosecutor D. K. McAdam of Duncan maintained the ruling was covered under the other sections and didn't have to be proved.

Narrow Escape for Driver

Fuel truck driver Donald Schultz, 2528 Trans-Canada Highway, had a narrow escape at 1 p.m. yesterday when the cab of a sawdust truck he was driving caught fire at Gorge and Tillicum. Before Saanich firemen could control the fire, flames were leaping 10 feet above the cab of the empty truck. Faulty wiring behind the seat above the gasoline tank, which did not ignite, was blamed. Damage to $2,500 vehicle was estimated at $300. Fireman Bob Sproule here douses last of flames.—(Robin Clarke photo.)

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

This is "New Faces Week" in Petrograd, Fla., where the freshly-minted managers, licensed since the baseball season ended, are mingling with the rest of the game's intellectuals at their annual mid-winter hog-killing and husking bee. There have been, of course, the customary changes of command in both major leagues, and these meetings are a sort of coming-out party for such newcomers as Charley Grimm, the bright young successor to Bob Scheffing with the Cubs; Bob Elliott, 1960 manager of the Athletics; and Joe Gordon, Frank Lane's choice to succeed Joe Gordon in Cleveland.

Theoretically, the Braves also have changed managers, but this may be only an illusion. To be sure, Fred Hayek's resignation was announced during the World Series and the Milwaukee club did subsequently conduct a signing ceremony with Charley Dressen. Since then, however, evidence has been uncovered suggesting that things may not be so spectacularly different around Milwaukee County Stadium next summer, after all.

First to point this out was the Jacksonville, Fla., sports editor, Jack Hairston, who likes to keep abreast of the Braves' affairs because Milwaukee operates a farm in his town. When Dressen's appointment was announced, Jack undertook certain researches which led him to the conclusion that sometimes things are not what they seem. The facts which follow here were assembled by the enterprising Mr. Hairston.

Deadly Baseball

Age: Dressen, 61; Hayek, 61.
Height: Dressen, 5 feet 6; Hayek, 5 feet 6.
Weight: Dressen, 170; Hayek, 170.
Color of Hair: Dressen, brown; Hayek, brown.
Color of Eyes: Dressen, blue; Hayek, blue.
Residence: Dressen, Los Angeles; Hayek, Los Angeles.
First position in professional baseball: Dressen, second base; Hayek, second base.
Regular position in majors: Dressen, third base; Hayek, third base.
Major league fielding average: Dressen, .953; Hayek, .953.
Seasons played in majors: Dressen, 7; Hayek, 7.
Manager in World Series: Dressen, twice; Hayek, twice.
World championships: Dressen, one; Hayek, one.

The Carbon Fades

Mr. Hairston, however, does not wish to create an erroneous impression that the Braves made no change at all. There are, he points out, certain points of difference, such as: Games played in majors: Dressen, 646; Hayek, 622. Lifetime batting average in majors: Dressen, .272; Hayek, .275.

Major league home runs: Dressen, 11; Hayek, 8.
Major league runs batted in: Dressen, 221; Hayek, 226.
Major league triples: Dressen, 29; Hayek, 21.
Major league runs scored: Dressen, 313; Hayek, 338.
Entered professional baseball: Dressen, 1919; Hayek, 1918.
In 1949 in the Pacific Coast League, Hayek's Hollywood team finished first, Dressen's Oakland team second. The following season, Dressen's Oakland team won and Hayek's Hollywood team was third.

No Prompting, Please

In the 1950s when Dressen was a major league manager in Brooklyn, Hayek was a manager in the Coast League. Then Hayek went to the majors and Dressen to the Coast League. In 1955 both were managing in the majors, Hayek in Pittsburgh and Dressen in Washington. That year Pittsburgh finished last in the National League, Washington finished last in the American.

Now, if Milwaukee's Mr. Lou Perini will please take his place in the isolation booth . . . thank you. Ready for the question? Very well, name the manager of the Braves for 1960 . . . Chuck Hayek? Well, er . . . Fred Dressen? Oh what the hell.

Speaking Briefly

Victoria Perplexing To WHL's Leader

Among others, president Al Leader of the Western Hockey League is wondering why attendance has sagged this season in most cities and cites Victoria Cougars as a prime example.

"Victoria and Vancouver both bewilder me," he said. "Victoria is perplexing. They have the best club they've had in years, they're operating on a produce-or-else basis at the gate, and yet the attendance has been mediocre."

Leader said Victoria and Vancouver are down on last year's marks, although only slightly. Edmonton is in the same position while only Calgary, Winnipeg and Seattle show gains. Spokane is far behind the pace it set as league attendance leaders last year.

FLOYD PATTERSON, former world heavyweight boxing champion, opens a Canadian tour Saturday at Windsor, Ont. Patterson will also appear at Kitchener, Peterborough, North Bay, Toronto and Montreal. He will box with sparring partners while tuning up for a rematch with Ingemar Johansson . . . Western Washington College of Bellingham, St. Martin's College of Olympia, Wash., and Vancouver Deitrich College will compete with host University of B.C. in the annual Totem basketball tournament at Vancouver this weekend . . . Bob Woodruff has resigned as head football coach and athletic director at the University of Florida.

GERRY JAMES, fullback of the Grey Cup champion Winnipeg Blue Bombers, arrived in Toronto to talk with coach-manager Punch Inlath of the city's National Hockey League club. James will try on skates for the first time in a year and if he impresses, will play with Rochester Americans of the American League . . . Commissioner Ford Frick, a stout antagonist of the new inter-league trading rule, thinks an extended process of player-swapping between the National and American Leagues may eventually prove harmful to baseball . . . Would-be boxing promoter Joe Tepper is hopeful of handling the return heavyweight title fight between Johnson and Patterson in New York in June.

PETER THOMSON of Australia fired a course record of 69, six under par, for the first round lead in a $6,700 golf tournament at Melbourne . . . Nino Valdes of Cuba and Mike De John of Syracuse, N.Y., beat British heavyweights Brian London and Dick Richardson respectively in a pair of disappointing bouts before a sellout crowd of 11,000 at London . . . Texas oil man Fred Turner paid $61,540 for a colt sired by Ribot, Italy's great racehorse. It was the highest price ever paid at Newmarket, England . . . An executive meeting of the Continental Baseball League will be held Dec. 8, at Miami Beach . . . Warfare, son of Determine—1954 Kentucky Derby winner, is the unanimous choice as the two-year-old champion of 1959 in the annual Thoroughbred Racing Association poll.

Meanwhile, Mount View junior girls claimed their second straight junior inter-high title by edging Oak Bay 15-17 in a sudden-death playoff game. Mount View, led by Mavis Veness and Jackie Shepard, finished play with a four-win, one-loss record.

Mount Douglas-Sylvia Campbell 2, Carol Castillo 16, Bob Watson 2, Sylvia Weisman 16, Pat Davidson 2, Joyce Murrant 4, Arlene Pierce 16, Georgina Soles 4, Lorette Walton 2, Total 38.

Long Jabs Brown's Weapon

High left jab by world lightweight champion Joe Brown bangs the forehead of challenger Dave Charnley of England in early action in their title fight at Houston, Tex., last night.

Brown sliced severe cut over Charnley's right eye as the fifth round ended and held his crown by technical knockout.—(AP Photofax.)

Head Butt or Punch Halts U.K. Challenger

HOUSTON, Tex.—Whether it was a right uppercut or a head butt, off blow paid off last night for Joe Brown as he held his world lightweight boxing championship with a sixth-round technical knockout over Britain's Dave Charnley.

The blow, late in the fifth round, ripped open the skin over Charnley's right eye, causing Jimmy Webb to stop the televised bout just before the next round began.

Alton Erickson, supervisor of boxing in Texas, ruled it was a sixth-round TKO.

Brown thus tied Benny Leonard's record of eight successful defences of the lightweight crown, and he says he will break it Dec. 9 with a bout against an unnamed opponent in an unidentified city.

"No use wasting six weeks of training," Brown said. "That is the hardest part of it. I'm not hurt and I'm ready to go."

Brown, 34, 164-pound Louisiana Negro who has held the title since he beat Wallace Smith Aug. 24, 1956, was ahead on points as the end came before 6,500 persons viewing the first international title fight in Texas.

DISPUTED BLOW
Disputed blow that opened the severe cut came as the fifth round was ending. Brown and referee Webb said it was a right uppercut following a left jab but Charnley and his manager said it was a butt from the head.

"It was purely unintentional, of course, but Brown came smashing in and his head hit Dave's eyebrow," said manager Arthur Boggis. "The gash will require three or four stitches, perhaps more. I told the referee Dave could not continue."

Brown opened a cut under the British Empire lightweight champ's left eye in the second round and pummeled the 133½-pound Charnley in the third with left-right combinations.

Charnley's left-handed approach gave him the edge in the fourth, but Brown opened the fifth with a left hook to the head and Charnley moved in for a lengthy exchange in which the champion had a big edge.

As the fifth ended, Charnley was bleeding badly in his corner and was leaning over to keep the blood from his eye while awaiting treatment from his seconds. He wanted to go on but Webb said no after one quick look.

Brown, 33, got 40 per cent of the net gate, about $45,000, and $40,000 in TV money for his 76th triumph in 104 pro fights. Charnley, 24, suffered his sixth loss in 39 pro bouts.

Harvey Gets $12,000 Tonight

MONTREAL (CP)—There will be big things to tonight at Montreal Forum when Doug Harvey, Montreal Canadiens defenceman, is deluged with an estimated $12,000 in gifts.

It's Doug Harvey Night, and tribute will be paid the star defenceman between the second and third periods of the National Hockey League game with New York Rangers.

Chairman Irving Liverman of the Doug Harvey Night committee said it will be "one of the biggest 'nights' ever held for a Montreal player."

Business and commercial firms had donated close to 100 gifts, including a station wagon.

Three Close Ones In Curling Draw

Three close games at the Victoria Curling Club last night spiced the opening draw of the round-robin city playoffs which lead eventually to the British Columbia Consols.

Steve Hayhurst's rink defeated Gordie More's four-some, 9-8. Gerry James edged Wes Young's Navy crew, 9-7, and Larry Marshall turned back the Jim Dickson four-some, 10-8.

Two other games were not so close. Tony Gutoski defeated Jack Craig of the RCN, 17-5, and Gar Taylor handed the Bob McIntosh foursome a 13-7 loss.

Young was heavy on his last rock, an attempted draw that, if successful, would have given him the game. Walls' rink had two counters on the left side of the house, out about the 12-foot mark.

Hayhurst and Moore also were tied up coming home, but Hayhurst didn't have to throw his last rock.

The Marshall rink was one up coming home and he got a counter, well guarded on the four foot ring. Dickson was a trifle heavy as he tried for a tie.

Four surviving rinks in the round-robin, along with two from the Duncan area, play another round-robin in Victoria, Dec. 16 and Duncan the following day. Top three rinks from that playoff advance to the Island final at Port Alberni, Jan. 23 and 24.

Northern Island curlers will play down to three rinks as well. Alberni Valley, Comox Valley and Nanaimo each will have round-robins to declare two rinks apiece for a succeeding round-robin at the Comox Valley Club.

Cougars Win, 5-2; Coach Confident

SPOKANE—Manager-coach Hal Laycoe contended last night that his Victoria Cougars are about to give Vancouver Canucks a battle for the Western Hockey League leadership after watching his charges take an impressive 5-2 win from Spokane Comets.

"We've improved far more than any team in this league and that includes Vancouver. If we can win another game on this road trip, we're going to make it an awful close race," Laycoe told The Colonist following Wednesday's win.

Are Canucks In Trouble?

CALGARY—The odds may be catching up to Vancouver, runaway leaders of the Western Hockey League in early going.

After breaking even in their first Prairie swing last month, a four-game affair, Canucks were humbled 7-2 by the Stampede in Calgary as they began their second invasion of the hinterland.

Lou Jankowski scored three times and added one assist, linemate Ron Leopold had one goal and three assists and Sid Finney got two goals as Stampede snapped a four-game losing streak.

IN SLUMP?
Result marked the first time this season Canucks have lost two in a row. Evidence that the leaders might be in a slump is further provided by the fact that, in their last five games, Canucks have only won one and tied one.

With 3,349 Calgaryans looking on, the game actually was over before it was seven minutes old. Jankowski got his first two at 3:14 and 4:05, both on short drives from directly in front, and Finney sinking his first on a corner passout from Jackie McLeod.

Larry Cahen cut the margin with a high slap shot near the end of the first period, but Stampede moved further ahead in the second as goals by Finney and Leopold sandwiched Canucks' last blow, a tip-in by Dave Duke of a long drive by Ralph Keller.

As a slow, close third period was ending, Gordie Vejrava and Jankowski broke it wide open with goals 25 seconds apart.

Canucks' loss and Victoria's win at Spokane sliced the Vancouver lead over Cougars to seven points.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—The hustling Cincinnati Royals found the scoring in the third period and rolled to a 135-118 victory over New York Knicks Wednesday night in the first game of a National Basketball Association doubleheader here.

Jack Twyman led Cincinnati with 39 points. Med Park, a ball-hawker in the clutch, scored 25 points.

Richie Guerin tallied 29 points for New York, which suffered its ninth loss in the last 10 games.

Syracuse Nationals took an early lead and never were headed as they halted the St. Louis Hawks' four-game winning streak, 130-121, in the second game.

Gene's Best Gimmick Can't Swing in Ring

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—NBA middleweight champion Gene Fullmer is swinging a baseball bat again—as he did in preparation for the fight against Carmen Basilio last August in which he won the title.

But challenger Spider Webb of Chicago has scoffed at Fullmer's baseball antics.

"He can hit with a baseball bat in training," Webb said, "but can he take it into the ring with him Friday night?"

Obviously the champion will not have the bat with him when he meets Webb in the 15-round nationally televised bout at the Utah State University Fieldhouse at Logan, Utah, 80 miles north of here.

But Manager Merv Jensen says the bat "gives all Fullmer's muscles a workout... and good batting form is good punching form."

Jensen says hitting is the best "gimmick" he has developed for Fullmer.

The champion boxed a quick five rounds in his final public workout at the nearby West Jordan, Utah, gym.

As Fullmer took his final swings at the heavy bag, Jensen announced Gene would like to try for light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore's crown if the middleweight king beats Webb.

"Maybe we'll take at shot at Bobo Olson first to show Gene is a worthy contender," Jensen said. Olson, a former middleweight champion, was knocked out when he tried to take Moore's title.

GENE FULLMER... batter up!

Rugby Title at Stake Saturday

Oak Bay After First Crown

Perennial city high school rugby champion Oak Bay will be shooting for the most important win of the school's history at Carnarvon Park Saturday afternoon.

A win over David Thompson High School of Vancouver would give Oak Bay its first B.C. championship to go with a record 17 city titles.

Oak Bay has reached the B.C. final during the last two years but has lost on each occasion to Lord Byng of Vancouver. Oddly enough, Oak Bay lost both games by 8-0 scores.

Lord Byng were eliminated this season in the mainland final by David Thompson. So, a new B.C. champion will be named Saturday afternoon.

At stake will be the R. P. Woodward Trophy. It was donated two years ago and thus far has been won only by Lord Byng.

Coach Don Oliver of Oak Bay feels that this is the year for his club, after they won the Howard Russell Trophy by sweeping the annual best-of-three series from Victoria High.

"This is the best chance we have ever had to win the B.C. championship. If the boys play as well as they did in our last series, we should be able to beat the Vancouver team."

Oak Bay will be at full strength for Saturday's game with the exception of scrum-half Brian Usher, who suffered torn muscles in his left leg during the Howard Russell series.

"The boys really want to win Saturday's game. After losing to Lord Byng the last two years, our players have no thoughts about losing," said Oliver.

Game time Saturday is 2:30. Half-time entertainment will be supplied by Oak Bay students.

Leafs Snap Canadiens' String; Hawks, Bruins in 2-2 Standoff

Montreal Canadiens' unbeaten streak was snapped last night at 18 games, five short of the National Hockey League record, by Toronto Maple Leafs, who are away on an unbeaten string of their own.

Frank Mahovlich snapped out of a lengthy slump to backhand a rebound past Jacques the nets at Chicago, where Hawks' Glenn Hall had another poor night. He blocked 20 shots, but only two in the goal-studded final period. Boston's Harry Lumley saved 39, including 27 in the third.

Eric Nesterenko, packing six stitches in his scalp from a first-period brawl, set up Bobby Hull for the opening goal at 6:07.

But, within a minute in mid-period, league-leading scorer Bronco Horvath got his 21st of the year for a tie and Doug Mohns put Bruins ahead by slapping in a Don McKenzie pass. Then Ron Murphy beat Lumley at 16:36, on a pass play with Jack Evans and Ted Sloan—to decide matters for good.

Nesterenko drew a major for the first fight while opponent Vic Stasiuk got two majors, for fighting and high-sticking, and a misconduct as well.

LABATT'S PILSENER NOW BREWED ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Increased demand for Labatt's Pilsener beer on the Island has enabled the company to bottle this brand at Victoria.

Previously all Labatt's Pilsener for sale on Vancouver Island was brewed at New Westminster.

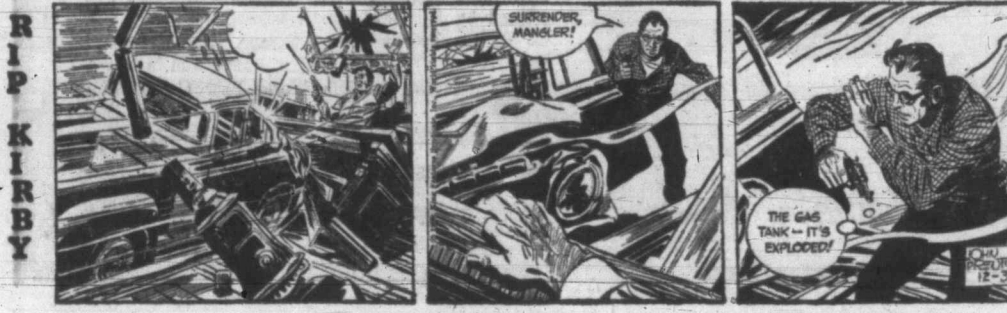

This move will result in increased year-round employment at the John Labatt Ltd. subsidiary, Lucky Lager Breweries Ltd., in Victoria.

Months of exacting quality control tests, and extensive modernization of equipment was undertaken to ensure that Labatt's original pilsener recipe would be accurately reproduced at the Victoria brewery. The recipe was created by European master brewers in Pilsen, and uses yeast flown here from Europe. It was awarded the "Prix d'Excellence", highest award won in North America, at the Belgium World Beer Competition in 1958.

We take pleasure in expanding our participation in the economic and social life of Vancouver Island.

Garden Notes

Trees Can Ruin Friendships

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

My mail this past week seems to be about equally divided between gardeners who want to plant some shade trees this winter and those who want to dig them up and destroy them. At first thought, one would wonder why anyone would want to get rid of a tree which has taken so long to grow, but a tree planted in the wrong place can be a terrible headache in more ways than one. The trouble is usually due to lack of imagination. A pretty little tree is purchased and planted where it will look nice NOW, without any regard as to what will happen in future years when the tree begins to reach its ultimate height and spread. There is no doubt about it that trees planted too near the house, too near a driveway, or too close to the property line can involve its owner in a lot of trouble, or even possibly in an expensive lawsuit.

The best plan is to avoid planting any of the forest type trees within 25 feet of the house, drive, or property line. A possible exception could be made in the case of a birch or basswood, both of which are reasonably well behaved.

Trees planted too close to the property line can be the cause of a lot of bad feeling between neighbors. It may shade a portion of his garden where he wishes to grow sun-loving plants. Its roots will trespass, robbing his lawn, garden and soil of moisture and nutrients. A big branch may come down in a storm, damaging his property, or the whole tree may topple over the wrong way.

The pruning of overhanging branches is another sore point, and one which is best settled amicably between the two parties. Under the law, the offending party has the right to cut off all intruding branches right back to the party line, although he can't use the branches for firewood —they still belong to the tree's owner. He can also dig down and sever all roots at the dividing line.

All of which does the tree a bit of no good. It is so mutilated and unbalanced, and its grip on the soil is so loosened, that it is more liable than ever to blow over, probably on to the offender's property, as it is heavier on that side. Who gets sued in such a case, I wouldn't know, but it is pretty obvious that nobody wins such a tree war.

Where such a bone of contention exists, I think a reasonable solution is for the two parties to settle for an expert pruning and thinning, and if necessary, bracing, by a professional tree man, with the tree's owner picking up the tab. I don't think any reasonable man is going to object to a neighbor's tree as long as he can be assured that it isn't going to come crashing through the roof some windy night.

TV in Review

It Was Nothing Special

By Fred Danzig

NEW YORK (UPI)—A TV special called "Something Special" wasn't.

The NBC-TV colorcast, with Red Buttons, Jeannie Carson and Jack Carson, trucked across the Ford star-time hour Tuesday night.

Buttons played a shy, single, 27-year-old country boy with grey hair who was in the big city looking for a nice, honest girl whose driver's licence would verify her age. Miss Carson portrayed a shy, red-haired English girl in the big city. She had no driver's licence and lied about her age, but otherwise seemed right for Buttons.

Jack Carson was the manager of a matrimonial bureau that brought Miss Carson and her beau, Buttons, together. Carson, Jack, had black hair.

The story was supposed to be an intimate one about two lonely, shy people who meet, date, quarrel—over her age—and finally get back together again. The moral, as I caught it in the final moments, was uttered by Buttons when he told Miss Carson, "Don't try to make everything perfect."

Earlier, Jack Carson set the stage for Buttons' change-of-heart when he lectured Red on the folly of seeking a platinum-coated, glamorous, Hollywood-style romance. "Appleauce!" he shouted, adding the only line in the play with some bite in it: "Love. That one word louses up my whole business."

In a play of this sort, the dialogue must delve, pierce, explore and expose these lonely drives of its characters. The dialogue must shade-in the backgrounds in order to lock up our interest and sympathy. In this, the "Something Special" dialogue failed.

For example, Buttons kept harping about honesty. His girl, he kept saying, would have to be honest above all. Why this Diogenesian phobia? It was never explained. Sure, bachelors often cling to outlandish reasons for staying single, but Buttons' behavior was too much on the Kookie side. He kept pestering poor little Jeannie Carson for her right age and her driver's licence to prove it. I guess he never heard of chivalry or birth certificates.

Miss Carson brought too much charm, prettiness and warmth to her role to be convincing as a lonely heart. Jack Carson threw me off by starting out as though he was impersonating a shyster. As usual, he finished up with a strong display of integrity. Buttons' performance was more lethargic than lonely because of the shallow dialogue and a lack of substitutive action. He could only dig in during a brief encounter with a dance hall girl and, later as he blurted out his love for Miss Carson.

I felt sorry for Red and Jeannie, but not for the reasons that Sol Saks, the author of the play, had in mind.

Hollywood Today

Early Rehearsals Leave Marilyn Limp

By Sheila Graham

HOLLYWOOD—Rock Hudson, who seems set for the role vacated by Gregory Peck in "Let's Make Love" (originally "The Billionaire"), will be glad to learn that co-star Marilyn Monroe's husband, playwright Arthur Miller, is doing a complete rewrite of the part refused by Peck.

As for Marilyn, she says, "Goodness, I've never worked so hard. I start rehearsals at 8 in the morning ... and I just fall into bed at night."

Hona Massey, still beautiful and blonde, is shopping for a Broadway show next season, and hoping it will be a musical version of "Grand Hotel."

King Vidor was originally asked to direct "The Big Hit," "Ben-Hur," but declined: "I didn't like the script," says King, who preferred "Solomon and Sheba."

As for Willie Wyler, who did direct "Ben-Hur," when I asked him what he planned for an encore, he replied, "a year's holiday."

Next biggie on the screen, "Spartacus," which cost Kirk Douglas's company $10,000,000. I wish him luck.

Elizabeth Taylor has signed as a director for Eddie Fisher's new company—for records, music and investments. You have to hand it to Liz—she gives her all, in every way, to the man she marries.

Very impressive are the new offices for Doris Day and husband Marty Melcher. Lettered on the entrance door in gold: "Arwin Productions; Arwin Music Corp.; Day-wirt Music Corp.; Artists Music Corp.; Marty Melcher; Doris Day." That's a lot of companies on any door.

Red Buttons has another change of pace in "Brotherhood of Evil." He plays the drug addict. "I'm getting more movie and TV offers than twin buttons could accept," Red told me happily.

Rhonda Fleming has a millionaire admirer who lives in the midwest and showers her with gifts when he comes to Hollywood.

Jimmy Cagney took a fancy to the type of horse he saw Robert Horton riding in "The Wagon Train," and now he's breeding them. There's a big demand for good horses in the dozens of westerns that still fill the TV screen.

Ross Hunter, Universal-International's fair-haired boy since "Imitation of Life" and "Pillow Talk," is discussing a deal with Dirk to co-star with Susan Hayward.

"No more babies for another year," says Gina Lollobrigida, in answer to the "expecting"-rumors. Soph says she's too busy. But sometimes man proposes and nature decides otherwise.

Dentists in Favor

Public Confused

Fluoridation Over the World

The International Dental Federation, in a report on the present position of fluoridation in the world, says that while fluoridation is accepted by responsible health authorities as an effective means of reducing tooth decay, so far it has not been implemented on a large scale in many countries.

Here are some of the findings in the survey, as reported in the British Dental Journal:

U.S.A.—Fluoridation is enthusiastically supported by health authorities, the medical and dental professions, and the public generally; some 38,000,000 people (almost one in four of the total population) are receiving its benefits, and only 4,000,000 are drinking naturally fluoridated water.

Canada — The government and the Canadian Dental Association have given a positive lead to fluoridation schemes; and one in 17 of the population is drinking enriched water. Extension of fluoridation is hindered by activities of antifluoridationists who have succeeded in confusing the public with literature containing wild and unfounded statements.

Latin America—Some projects for fluoridation of public water supplies have been undertaken, but further progress is hindered by financial problems; lack of initiative by health authorities and public apathy.

Africa—Apart from a fluoridation scheme in Gerniston, in South Africa, and Alexandria in Egypt, there are no other functioning or planned projects on the whole continent. In Kenya, the natural fluoride concentration in water supplies is as high as 10 parts per million, and the possibility of de-fluoridation is being studied.

Middle East—There are a number of naturally occurring fluoride areas, but no artificial fluoridation. The relatively low incidence of dental caries in Iran is felt to be possibly due to the habit of drinking strong tea, acquired at a very early age.

Australia — Australia sees the professions and the public strongly in favor, but emphasis on essential services such as roads, sewers and schools, and the expense of fluoridation has restricted introduction of the measure to two towns only. In New Zealand there is government support, but so far only Hastings, with a population of 20,000, has adopted fluoridation. There is an active anti-fluoridation group supporting the use of fluoride tablets.

Europe—Fluoridation is carried out, on small experimental scales, in Belgium, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, Holland and Sweden. Great Britain, where ministerial and professional support is strong, three schemes are in progress in different parts of the country; introduction of plans is found to be influenced by a vociferous anti-fluoridation minority. In Austria and East Germany, there is interest in the efficiency of tablet fluoridation.

U.S.S.R.—There is no information as to the precise methods of fluoridation practised in the Soviet Union. There are many areas with natural fluoridation of the water supplies, and it is understood that a large-scale review of the long-term results of "tooth fluoridation" is now in progress.

'Sure Money' Lures Youth

By LEON KOSSAR

FERRYLAND, Nfld. (TNS) —This is the world of Howard Morry, fisherman.

A comfortable world. Ocean spray, spread cod drying in the sun, roast pork and bake-apple berries.

The fishermen in Howard's town are sewn of tough leather and they fight the sea with handlines and traps so their snug coves may live.

(Canada is a land of many nationalities and races. This is the first of a series of articles profiling Canada's main ethnic communities and their contributions to Canadian life.)

Men of the South Shore.

The "outports." But as they "scrape 'n spread" their cod they silent prayers are that at least some of their children will inherit their deep love for the "fish-ery."

Need to Worry

They have cause to worry. The same rocky inlets that once sheltered privateers and provided homes for generations of fishermen have been invaded today by TV, rock 'n roll, new cars and electronic gadgetry.

Yet this hasn't been enough to hold the "young 'uns." The province's revitalized education program beckons youth to professions, trades—"sure money" in the cities. Howard Morry and his cod men feel it will work out, though.

Philosopher Howard Morry repairs gear of cod fleet to be ready for another season of "the good life."

Howard is 74, a silver-tufted giant of a man; fisherman, farmer, master story-teller, unofficial mayor of this community of 700.

"There will always be those who stay to fish," he philosophizes in the melodic English-Irish dialect that falls pleasantly on the ears.

Free as Bird

"The life's too good. You're free as a bird... your own boss."

He's convinced Newfoundland's confederation has helped the fishermen. But although it has been a province for 10 years, he'll greet "mainlanders" instinctively with "Hello, young Canadian!"

Proud of his home, passed down from generation to generation, Howard asks: "Tell them we don't live in shacks. Some say we do, y'know." The "shacks" are bright clapboard homes dressed for fall with fresh paint in rain-bow colors. Sharp contrasts with the drab, weather-beaten boats, docks, fish sheds at the water's edge.

Sure, fisherman Herb Barnable may have to "work at Goose" (Goose Bay) some winters when fishing doesn't bring enough "savin' voyages."

"But the fall fishin' this year!" he exclaims: "The best in years!"

Cod prices (they get two cents a pound) should be higher, sighs Herb. Willie Costello, lighthouse keeper over the narrows, agrees: "Make fishin' more attractive—then the young 'uns w'll stay." Willie has been a "light" all his life; his father and grandfather before him.

Brotherhood

But experienced cod men rarely make more than $1,400 a season. Many make less.

How can families live on this?

Part of the answer is community spirit. An outport brotherhood.

When Jack Devereaux goes out on his first voyages in the spring he knows full well everyone in town will be waiting when he gets back, each wanting a fresh fish, points out Howard's daughter-in-law, war bride Pat Morry.

Fish Free

"He'll give each a cod and won't ask a cent. He'd throw it in your face if you offered him money!"

Says Pat: "I can walk into anyone's house in Ferryland, or anyone into mine, and ask for a cup of tea. Or a neighbor'll bring over a sack of blue potatoes, even if you have four sacks of your own."

Fill Coffers

When Rev. John Cotter finds church coffers low the children put on a concert, or adults stage their own skit and music night. "Light" Willie Costello, teacher, Ernie Ryan and housewife Pauline Devereaux write and produce the shows.

When snows seal roads home socials abound. Howard tells of the old Kerivan sea gang, the legendary treasures of Peter Easton, the chronicled settlement days of Capt. Edward Wynne in 1621—or his own English ancestors who fought off d'Iberville's forces from a fortified island in the cove.

Strict Rules

But teenagers here have strict rules. Study in the winter, play in the summer. They enjoy sports, home parties with square dances, rock 'n' roll. Summer vacations even pre-teens help with the cod, earn up to $70.

Howard's fishing days are over. But he mows hay, milks cows, "sets out" the vegetables and helps his son Bill with fish-packing chores.

Merryland is full of men with his energy, his jovial spirit.

It'll never change.

GREATEST IMPROVEMENT IN SMOKING SINCE THE INVENTION OF FILTER

In the past ten years, cigarette researchers, urged on by public demand for filtered smoking, developed many new and improved filters—with laudable results.

No one, however, was able to find a way to improve cigarette paper. It remained unchanged—no different from the paper in use over 50 years ago.

Then, early this year, Rembrandt introduced MULTIVENT—the first major breakthrough in cigarette research in over 50 years! MULTIVENT's surface is covered with countless controlled air vents. They literally breathe fresh air in with every puff. This flow of fresh air creates more complete combustion—resulting in cleaner, cooler, fresher smoking.

A completely Canadian invention, MULTIVENT was developed by the Rembrandt-Rothmans research group in Toronto, Ontario, under the guidance of the International Research Division of the Rembrandt Corporation.

With countries throughout the world following Canada's lead in high porosity paper, Rembrandt MULTIVENT is being recognized by world tobacco experts as "the greatest improvement in smoking since the invention of the filter cigarette."

Rembrandt with MULTIVENT introduced in Canada early this year

Now, 6 AMERICAN
MANUFACTURERS
FOLLOW SUIT

Early this year, a completely Canadian discovery, Rembrandt with MULTIVENT—the first cigarette that breathes—was launched in Canada. A few months later, six major American manufacturers followed suit.

Newsweek magazine reported the introduction of these new American cigarettes, with this reference, "even a Canadian firm got into the act."

To set the record straight, The Financial Post of Canada replied with the following editorial:

"Newsweek cannot be allowed to get away with the statement that 'even a Canadian firm got into the act.'

"As summer edged toward August's heat," the magazine says, 'cigarette-makers broke out in a flurry of newspaper ads to announce their own contribution to public comfort—air-conditioned cigarettes.'

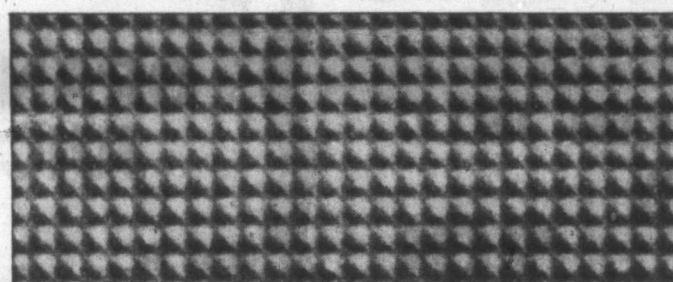

"Follows a list of American tobacco concerns that are producing the new kind of smoke; then the surprised footnote already quoted—'even a Canadian firm got into the act.'

"The true story is that cigarettes with a built-in cooling system, like insulin, standard time and transcontinental railways were invented in Canada and are being copied in the U.S.

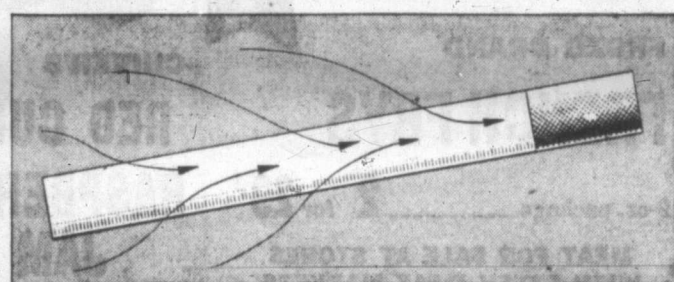

"Everything's up-to-date in this northern suburb."

Rembrandt Leads World Trend To High Porosity Paper

Since its introduction in Canada early this year, Rembrandt with MULTIVENT has been launched in country after country throughout the world. In many countries, other manufacturers have followed Rembrandt's lead. Latest reports indicate a definite world trend to high porosity paper.

With so many countries throughout the world joining the trend to high porosity paper, what is the reaction of the Rembrandt-Rothmans group in Toronto? "Rembrandt is proud and happy to see so many other countries following Canada's lead," a Rembrandt spokesman said. "It means that smokers everywhere can now enjoy the important benefits of cleaner, cooler, fresher smoking."

Rembrandt puts pleasure back in filter smoking with MULTIVENT paper

Only Rembrandt has MULTIVENT. Its surface is covered with countless controlled air vents. They literally breathe fresh air in with every puff. This cleans, cools and smooths the smoke naturally.

MULTIVENT a Rembrandt Exclusive

MULTIVENT paper is so fine and delicate, Rembrandt should be handled more gently than conventional cigarettes. MULTIVENT has one-quarter the tensile strength of ordinary cigarette papers—and it is thinner. So please handle it with care.

All Smokers In This Area Can Now Get The New Rembrandt Cigarette

Until now, Rembrandt has been in controlled supply in selected outlets of the city. However, in answer to the rapidly increasing demand, Rembrandt is now expanding distribution throughout this entire area.

As quickly as possible, every outlet in the city and surrounding district will be supplied with stocks of Rembrandt. Naturally, the continually increasing demand may cause shortages of Rembrandt in certain stores. If your tobacconist is unable to supply you with Rembrandt each time you call, it's not his fault. As production increases, your tobacconist will be well supplied and ready to answer your request for Rembrandt with MULTIVENT—and cleaner, cooler, fresher smoking.

Take out a Rembrandt. You can see the countless microscopic indentations. Each is a controlled air vent which literally breathes fresh air as you smoke. Run a Rembrandt gently through your finger tips. You can feel the difference, too. Now, light up and draw. You're experiencing a taste entirely new to smoking—a cleaner, cooler, fresher taste than ever before, and what's more... you taste more tobacco, less paper. This is the way tobacco was meant to taste. Smoke a Rembrandt to-day and you'll know... this is the cigarette you have always wanted to smoke.

IMPORTANT: MULTIVENT paper is so fine and delicate, Rembrandt should be handled more gently than conventional cigarettes. MULTIVENT has one-quarter the tensile strength of ordinary cigarette papers and it is thinner. So please handle it with care.

Sentence Due Tomorrow On Warehouse Thieves

Following a series of, re-mands in city police court, three Victorians will be sentenced Friday for the $4,000 robbery of Vancouver Barge Transportation Ltd., 1112 Wharf, on Nov. 20.

Barry H. Sharpe, 23, of 614 Marfield; Waldron William Pelton, 20, HMCS Naden, and Charles C. Casey, 16, 1228 Crown Crescent, all pleaded guilty.

In court yesterday prosecutor T. P. O'Grady was allowed to withdraw their pleas. Sharpe had not entered a plea on this charge.

Mr. O'Grady said he felt there was not sufficient evidence to proceed on the car theft charge, and that there was a fine distinction between that charge and one of taking a car without the owner's consent, which he proposed to lay instead.

Two men who had pleaded guilty to four theft charges—three involving hubcaps and a quantity of gasoline—were sentenced yesterday by Magistrate Ostler, who termed the offences "stupid escapades which are also crimes."

John Pollock, 532 Dunedin, and William Watmough, 616 Garbally, were placed on probation under bond of $250 each for six months on the first offence, and fined $10 each on each of the other charges.

Also in city police court, Rebecca Shepard, 819 Fort, was found guilty of theft under the value of $50, and fined $35. She was accused of stealing a bottle of whisky from the car of Stanley Crittenden, 3309 Quadra.

Donald Edward Earl, HMCS Naden, pleaded guilty in Colwood police court to causing a disturbance by fighting at Luxton Hall Saturday night. He was fined $25.

Fraser Joseph, 41, 1371 Craigflower, was given concurrent three-month jail sentences in Sidney police court yesterday, following conviction on two charges of assault causing bodily harm and one of theft under the value of $50.

Charges, police said, rose from a fracas Tuesday night at East Saanich Indian Reserve.

Arsenic Caches Grow

SEATTLE (AP)—Arsenic was found Tuesday in a jar of coffee kept in the county-city building, where 11 city planners were stricken after drinking coffee laced with arsenic last week.

The jar is the third coffee container in the building found contaminated by arsenic.

Meanwhile, members of the city planning commission staff continued to take lie detector tests. The planners became ill Nov. 23 after drinking coffee made from a can apparently substituted for the regular coffee can.

Winter Works Bylaw Passed by Sidney

Sidney Village commission has passed a $12,000 winter works bylaw.

Included on the list of proposed winter works are the building of a storm sewer on Third Street, a garden and lawn area in the vicinity of the new ferry wharf, a parking area for buses and taxis at the wharf passenger entrance, and cleaning up of Beacon Avenue. Sidewalks for Second and Fourth Streets are also on the list.

Village clerk A. W. Sharp said last night the passing of the bylaw does not necessarily mean that the entire amount will be spent but it must be done to receive approval from the federal and provincial governments who pay 75 per cent of winter works labor costs.

Works will be discussed by the new council after the election, Dec. 15. Candidates are Dr. C. H. Hemmings, seeking re-election, chairman, Mrs. M. Roberts and A. W. Freeman.

Life Likely on Venus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A scientist has suggested that boneless animals, perhaps similar to jellyfish, may abound in oceans on Venus.

The suggestion came from Dr. Harrison Brown, of the California Institute of Technology. He and other scientists participated in a news conference at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The scientists agreed that life on Venus seems more probable as a result of the discovery that the planet's atmosphere contains water vapor.

Joining Brown in the discussion were Dr. Robert Jastrow of NASA, Dr. Thomas Gold of Cornell University and Dr. Harold C. Urey of the University of California at La Jolla.

All agreed existence of water on Venus, if it isn't too hot, indicates the possibility and perhaps the probability that the planet supports life.

The Venusian atmosphere contains an enormous amount of carbon dioxide compared to the amount of the same gas in the earth's atmosphere. On earth, much of the atmospheric carbon dioxide has been carried down in rain and has combined with surface rocks to produce limestone.

Limestone is the hard stuff of bones. Brown suggested that the relatively larger amounts of carbon dioxide in the Venusian atmosphere may mean that the planet is covered with seas. This would prevent limestone-forming contact between the gas and the planetary rock.

"So if life exists on Venus," Brown said, "it might not have any bones."

He agreed that it might resemble jellyfish.

Urey said he was "not terribly surprised" by the scientific evidence of water vapor on Venus.

DANIEL O'CONNOR
... to be returned

Man Long-Sought in B.C. To Be Returned from U.S.

A man wanted by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for seven years as an attempted-murder suspect will be returned to this province soon for trial.

Daniel William O'Connor was hunted for years in connection with the pistol-whipping of an RCMP officer in the Okanagan. Last Boxing

Day he was arrested in San Diego, Calif., on an assault charge.

He was sentenced to 10 years in prison on the U.S. charge, but meanwhile fingerprints had identified him as the man wanted in this province, and extradition proceedings were launched. They are now near completion.

O'Connor was checked by RCMP near Penticton about seven years ago, while living near there with his wife and family. He broke loose, pistol-whipped the officer, and vanished.

Men Fall in Love With Look-Alikes

By ROSEMARY BOXER

ROME—It has been "Forgive and Forget" week in Rome for the two beautiful women whose friendship with the noble Orsini brothers has constantly made news.

Belinda Lee, the famous English actress, was publicly "forgiven" for her two-year romance with married Prince Filippo Orsini when she appeared as a guest star on Italy's top television show.

And ex-Queen Soraya did the forgetting. With her mother she lunched at Prince Raimondo Orsini's home.

So perish any thought that the paternity suit brought by Paris model Monique Bertoulesque against Raimondo would end his romance with Soraya. If anything it cemented it and the rumors of their engagement still fly around.

But poor Soraya is having a very difficult time in Rome just now. She lives in virtual seclusion in a modest, middle-class, rented villa on the outskirts of Rome.

POLICE GUARD

In seclusion, that is except for the police guard outside the door and the photographers spaced at strategic intervals along her roadway. When the Shah's new romance with Farah Diba became known, Soraya's resolve to stay out of the public eye became more noticeable. The police guard was increased, and the rare trickle of visitors to her villa stopped altogether. The telephone was disconnected.

Is Soraya broken-hearted? Or does she merely wish to spare the Shah any embarrassment? Not even her few closest friends know this answer.

Soraya, today, remains a woman of mystery. And, obviously a woman of great sorrow.

Which brings up a point.

Have you noticed the resemblance between the Shah's new fiancée, Farah Diba and his ex-wife, Soraya? Not to mention Peter Townsend's fiancée's likeness to Princess Margaret.

These two spotlight once more the age-old story that when it comes to finding a new love, men invariably revert to a type. They usually choose a younger version of their "ex," with basically the same features and the same coloring.

IT'S COLD

Italy is not always sunny. As any Canadian army veteran will confirm, and right now it's cold and rainy.

Marie-Luce and Princess Margaret

Farah Diba and Queen Soraya

Sun-loving Hollywood actress Tina Louise who is here making a film, says she has never been colder. In order to keep warm she has bought portable electric heaters, electric blankets and hot water bottles ... and still she shivers.

"Only thing that warms me up is the look that these Italian men give me when I walk down the street," said Tina.

Real Irish Coffee Gives Tongue Twist

By LOUISE MOORE
Telegram Food Editor

Here it is five in the morning—10 a.m. in Ireland—and I feel as though I'm sitting on top of the world—and what a beautiful world it is. I watched TCA's Super Constellation glide down thousands of feet through billowing clouds and touch down at Shannon airport—light as a feather.

STARTING POINT

Shannon airport is an excellent starting point for an Irish vacation. From here you can join luxury "song of Erin" tours lasting from 2 to 11 days or hire self-drive or chauffeur cars to get anywhere in Ireland and at modest prices.

I wanted to get information about food and dining facilities so visited (who's kidding whom) the Shannon airport dining restaurant.

It was at Shannon that I learned about Irish coffee, "the most delectable drink that has ever crossed the palate"—in the words of an Irishman. And there I learned to clink glasses to the old Gaelic "sláinte" which means good health. Also heard an old Irish toast which runs like this:

"Health and long life to you. Land without rent to you. A child every year to you. And may you die in Ireland."

WITH WHISKY

Irish coffee, I believe, originated at Shannon and today you find it served around the world. But an Irishman insists you must make it with Irish whisky or you'll spoil the brew. Maybe he has something, and for a party it makes a delicious beverage.

If you make it as strong as they do here, it will give a twist to the tongue but for a relaxing nightcap you can lower the boom and keep it more on the coffee side. Here is the recipe just as it appears on an Irish card.

Irish Coffee
"Cream—rich as an Irish brogue,
Coffee—strong as a friendly hand,
Sugar—sweet as the tongue of a rogue,
Whisky—smooth as the wit of the land."

Heat a stemmed whisky goblet; pour in one jigger of Irish whisky, add 3 cubes of sugar; fill goblet with strong black coffee to within an inch of the brim; stir to dissolve sugar; top off to brim with whipped cream slightly aerated so that the cream floats on top; do not stir after adding cream as the true flavor is obtained by drinking the hot coffee and Irish whisky through the cream. I noted the cream was slowly poured on the back of a spoon placed inside at edge of the glass and in this way it spreads over the top rather than sinking into the coffee—"sláinte."

"When they're stopped for speeding," the spokesman said, "the foreign ladies immediately ask the motorcycle policeman, 'Why don't you stop the people who are driving faster than we are? Are you blind?'" This sometimes leaves the policeman flabbergasted.

By contrast, the spokesman said, the Japanese women are extra-careful drivers and extra-meek when a policeman stops them.

"Their voices are generally broken with emotion or tears when we give them tickets," he said.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I have four boys who are always getting bumped, bruised or hurt. I'm thankful nothing serious has happened to them but anyone who has raised boys will tell you that one is always bandaged or healing.

My mother-in-law enjoys making trouble for me in small ways. Whenever my husband mentions one of the boys had a fall or cut himself she says "Where was their mother when it happened?" Then he looks at me and says, "I never thought of that."

Now you know, Ann Landers, no mother can police her kids 24 hours a day. I do my best, but when my mother-in-law gets through with me you'd think I was the poorest mother in the world. How can I defend myself?—RESENT-FUL.

Dear Beautiful: You don't need to defend yourself so don't bother. Ask your husband to keep his lip zipped about what happens on the home front. It isn't necessary that he brief his mother on all the small casualties.

When she notices a bruise or a bandage and asks where you were when it happened, simply say "Drunk in a saloon—as usual." This should defang her.

Like It or Lump It

Dear Ann Landers: My boy friend is separated from his wife—but not divorced. His children are teenagers. He sees me about four nights a week and then spends weekends with his family. He moves right in with a suitcase.

I told him last week to either live with them or leave them alone. His answer set me to thinking.

He said "I can always get another girl friend but I'll never be able to replace my children." I told him not to fool himself, that one day his kids will marry and he'll be a lonesome man.

Please don't get the idea that I want him to marry me. I don't. I'm self-supporting and am interested only in companionship. Should I insist he choose between his family and me?—MEG.

Dear Meg: He's already made his choice. Furthermore, he's told you to like it or lump it.

Whether you realize it or not, you're going with a married man. I'll bet you a dollar to an old London button that if you told him you were through being his weekday sweetie he'd go back to his family on a full-time basis which is where he belongs.

Hire Someone to Sing

Dear Ann: I'm going to be married in January and I need a common sense opinion.

My mother has a lovely singing voice and has been the soloist at many weddings. She would like to sing at my wedding and I have no objections, but something tells me that it isn't proper. Another complication is that she would have to sing from the balcony and not be able to sit with the family.

May I ask your advice on whether or not it's proper?—BERKLEY BRIDE.

Dear B.B.: Your mother can sing at a wedding any old time but the pleasure of sitting beside her husband and witnessing your marriage will come only once.

Hire someone to sing from the balcony; and suggest that your mother attend the wedding in a non-professional capacity.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help for the Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Tips for Parents

Six-Year-Olds Don't Like TV

By HELEN R. HEWSON

There are a few children who show only a passing interest in television and as a rule their parents are relieved to be free of the problems of deciding what programs, how long to permit TV viewing, etc., that beset most households where there are young children.

But here is one parent who is worried—she believes her boy is missing something worthwhile.

Mother writes: "My six-year-old does not enjoy television. I feel he is missing a lot."

"I cannot possibly teach him as much as he could learn on television. He does well at school, concentrates well and understands and enjoys stories when read to him, but cannot understand TV plays."

"Can you give me a tip about helping him?"

A few days ago a teacher was discussing television programs with a group of six-to-eight-year-old boys. A few of the younger boys did not show a lively interest in the programs and only one could retell the story of a presentation.

GOOD GUYS

They could describe the incidents, and distinguish between the "good guys" and the "bad guys" but had not grasped the plot. On the other hand the older boys were interested in the stories acted out by their favorite characters.

Children are not passive creatures absorbing all impressions, automatically. As they grow out of babyhood and their experiences and social contacts broaden they begin to select. They attend to the things that satisfy them, that meet their own personal needs.

Today most children have a comparatively rich environment. This includes play space, a variety of toys and equipment, neighborhood and school friends and a home that provides intellectual stimulation through books, music, television, radio, conversation, etc., and excursions to see and learn about things outside his home community.

SKIP THROUGH

Many children skip through all this, cramming as much as they can into their busy days and settling down to a few more lasting interests in their later childhood years. Others are more selective, perhaps more thoughtful, too, at an earlier age.

Not all six-year-olds are deeply interested in TV, and we do not know how meaningful their interest really is.

This six-year-old may have had an unhappy experience with a noisy or violent program or he may enjoy other things more than TV. Don't urge him, continue to read to him.

Let your teaching be incidental and informal. If he enjoys the things his home has to offer he will gradually extend his interests to include more of the things he sees his parents enjoying.

Mr. Creasey gave his daughter in marriage in the double-ring ceremony. She was lovely in a gown of white brocade, slightly entrain, fashioned with scalloped neckline, fitted

The bride's sister, Mrs. R. H. Kent, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. M. Creasey were attendants. Mrs. Kent wore green velvet and Mrs. Creasey chose gold velvet. Both wore matching headbands and carried yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

The Carnival Spirit

In the Christmas carnival spirit is Mrs. Grace Penny, a member of WA to Cadboro Bay United Church, creating festive decorations for their sale at Frank Hobbs School, Saturday, Dec. 5, from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. — (Colonist photo.)

New Ideas

Decorations Cover Traditional, Modern

The Festival of Christmas Decorations held in the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel yesterday under the auspices of the Family and Children's Service Auxiliary gave a lot of people some new ideas on how to decorate for the holiday season.

Creative ability and imagination used by the exhibitors was of high standard and range. There was everything from the straight traditional, highly ornate to starkly simple arrangements.

Mrs. Frank MacKenzie Ross, accompanied by Miss Ruth MacLean, presented the prizes to the winners at the close of the evening show. Judging was by popular vote and in some cases there were some pretty close calls.

VICTORIAN STYLE

Almost Victorian in style and calling for a large room was the table covered with a white fringed red cloth. A silver tree on a silver mounted mirror centred this table which had bowls holding silvered pineapples and gilded leaves at either end. A gilded artichoke was set in another bowl. Crystal tumblers reposed on a silver tray beside a decanter of red wine and the candles in silver holders were also red.

IN CONTRAST

In contrast was the simple arrangement of candles, a whole row of them swathed in angel hair, to resemble a pastel pipe organ and a large, clear brandy snifter filled with varicolored balls. The cloth was red with stripes of white satin.

One small table had a fenced-in church where sheep strolled in the snow and greenery, the novelty of this being that the church was made of chiclets, the spire of peanuts, the door and windows of colored candy.

CANDY CASTLE

Another use of confection was made in the castle of miniature marshmallows, the turrets of colored frosting dusted with tiny silver and colored candy decoration.

One Christmas tree made of lace doilies centred a table which had candle holders of the same paper lace. Plain ordinary tissues were used for another tree.

COLORED EGGSHELLS

Colored half eggshells, trimmed with silver and centered with miniature flowers were used on one snow covered tree. Cellophane made a delicate looking tree with amethyst beads and base helping to create the illusion.

Large white poinsettias, white candles and silver tipped greenery decorated a mantle next to a more traditional one of red berried holly, candles in a brass holder, Christmas cards underneath an oval gold mirror. A large red stocking hung from this mantle.

DUTCH SHOE SHIP

Judges chose winners in the student section although a popular vote also made a choice.

Judged winner in the novelty class was a wooden Dutch shoe made to look like a ship with silver mast and rigging set in a sea of green angel hair. The ship held wrapped gifts. Jacqueline Chaffey of Royal Oak was the exhibitor.

TOP TABLE

The top table in the show was arranged by Marlene Donnelly and Judy Holt of Esquimalt High. A sleigh basket holding gaily wrapped parcels centred the table on a silver covered tray outlined in red and silver carrying out the red of the tiny poinsettias and the silvered greenery. Red candles

Brussels Sprouts Hold High Demand

Victorians seem to be following their English traditions and acquiring tastes from across the border with equal impartiality. Sales of both Brussels sprouts, yams and sweet potatoes have been heavier this year than in any previous. Starting at Thanksgiving the buying has been heavy and is expected to continue after the holiday.

TO BE CLEARLY MARKED. The main shipment of the much maligned cranberry will arrive in Victoria from the east about the middle of next week. Any doubts can be dispelled by reading the label which will be marked 'Certified to be free of injurious material.' They will retail from 33 to 35 cents per pound.

There's a good supply of table fruits. In this line dates have taken a long stride in popularity and sell for 33 cents for a 12-ounce package and 69 cents for a two-pound lot. Raisins from California are retailoring 49 cents for a 15-ounce carton and figs are going for 59 cents in the same weight.

There will probably be enough nuts to go around although pecans are practically non-existent and Brazils may be short as there won't be any more arriving before Christmas.

Almonds have had a strong demand and have almost doubled in price since the beginning of the year although at that they are cheaper than last Christmas. Walnuts and filberts are in good supply.

The gorgeous red of the Spartan apple may be partly responsible for its growing popularity. A cross between a Newton and McIntosh Red, this apple seems to have retained the best of both, the keeping qualities of the former, and the flavor of the latter. This Cadillac of apples is selling 35 to 39 cents for two pounds.

Married at St. George's

Brown Teddy Bear, Baby Dolls Back

TORONTO (CP) — The brown teddy bear, missing from the toy market for about 15 years, will be back in 1960. But Canadian toys for this Christmas are better, and bigger, than ever before, says Earle Pullan, director of an organization of Canadian toy manufacturers.

"You can't sell junk to Canadians even if it's cheap," he said. The new toys cost more, but they're better made and they're bigger.

One of the best sellers this year is a life-size three-year-old doll with straight hair. A lot of dolls have straight hair, a style that was successfully introduced last year.

The sophisticated doll is on the way out, and the baby doll is coming back more strongly than ever, said Mr. Pullan, who's been in the doll business for 18 years.

Cuddly-type toys are popular with Canadian youngsters, and they don't like futuristic toys, he said. Space suits, toy rockets and other missile-age toys sell well in the United States, but Canadian youngsters just aren't interested.

During 1959, it's estimated that Canadians will spend $60,000,000 at the retail level for Canadian-made toys.

"Of that I think 60 to 70 per cent is at Christmas," he estimated.

Mr. Poulan doesn't think that toys are a luxury.

"A child growing up without toys is missing one of the fundamental joys of life," he says.

Lady Nancy Blasts Artist

LONDON (AP) — Lady Nancy Astor gave a classic demonstration Tuesday night of how not to open an art show.

The man who is writing her biography, 70-year-old Maurice Collis, happens also to be a part-time painter. He invited Lady Astor to open his exhibition at London's Kaplan galleries.

Lady Astor, 81 on her next birthday, took a quick look at the nonrepresentational paintings, then jumped nimbly onto a window sill and exclaimed:

"Mr. Collis, I am appalled and staggered by your paintings. They make me feel 10 years older than I look. And no woman likes that."

"If I said what I really thought about these paintings," she went on, "You'd run me out of the gallery."

Collis smiled weakly.

"Of course, everything Lady Astor says is a great joke," he murmured.

AT THE GALLERY

With Ina D. D. Uthoff

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

If you want to see something different be sure to visit the current showing of Bill Koochin's sculpture and drawings.

The installation is very cleverly done. One no longer feels that one is in Victoria—New York at least, or Paris comes to mind.

The sculpture strikes the contemporary note, but there is nothing unintelligible in it to the least uninitiated; it is handsome stuff, mostly of metal, welded steel being most in evidence.

Koochin's drawings are sound anatomically, stressing the basic movements in the building of the figures. Here is a draftsman of no mean ability as is apparent in his pencil drawing of a reclining nude.

FOLK PAINTERS

Of entirely different calibre is the second exhibit, "Folk Painters of the Canadian West," which has been collected and put on tour by the National Gallery of Canada.

In what way does a folk painter differ from the average amateur artist? How can his work be assessed?

Folk painting makes no claim to artistic excellence. It is the work of self-taught artists who have not acquired any knowledge of the art of painting through academic training.

UNIQUE CHARM

It has a unique charm on account of its sincerity; for even when the painter believes that he is achieving a realistic image, it is actually his own inner image of places or people that he is putting on canvas.

He has been carried along by his fervor, by his joy in the re-creation of familiar things.

He alters and enriches as best suits his purpose. He has passionate love of details and with single-minded devotion he fuses them into a picture.

VALUES ALTERED

"Perspective" as we know it, is ignored. Things far off may be brought near. "Light and shade" may be disregarded, and "space" may be reduced to a simple two dimensional pattern. But each painting has been experienced by the artist. Not a hair may be put out in the portraits or a stalk of wheat in the landscapes.

There is no similarity in the work of the six painters in this group. Some may be more sophisticated and produce work which possesses a higher degree of finish or a more strongly developed design or color sense; others may express themselves more crudely but the feeling of sincerity and enjoyment is common to all.

The six painters are Jan G. Wyers of Windhorst, Saskatchewan; W. M. Stewart of Vancouver; Roland Keevil of Saskatoon; Sidney Barker, also of Saskatoon; William Panko of Alberta; and Eugene W. Dahlstrom of Hardy, Saskatchewan.

Sentence for Youth Quashed by Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conviction of a 15-year-old boy at Dawson Creek, for breaking and entering was quashed in Supreme Court Wednesday on the application of the Attorney-General.

The court was told that the magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the boy because of his age and the case should have been heard in juvenile court.

Lessen Dependence on U.S.

PARIS (Reuters) — A British Labor member of parliament proposed Wednesday that Western Europe create a nuclear striking force for "limited war" to lessen its dependence on the United States.

Fred Mulley told the seven-country Western European Union Assembly that intercontinental ballistic missiles have diminished Europe's value to American defence.

No European country, therefore, could reasonably expect the U.S. to expose itself to nuclear retaliation in response to any and every attack on Western Europe.

In the absence of disarmament agreements or a "non-nuclear club," Europe's answer to limited aggression lies in the creation of a joint nuclear striking force, Mulley said.

This would create several problems, "Britain would have to give up being an independent nuclear power and supply the initial basis for such a European nuclear pool."

"There is also the question of agreements with the United States which forbid the passing on of nuclear information. These agreements would need to be modified."

Paul Henri Spaak, secretary-general of the North Atlantic

Treaty Organization, Tuesday criticized Mulley's proposals, which had been released earlier in a report.

He asked instead for the West to face boldly Russia's challenge of peaceful co-existence, and urged greater concentration of political, economic and military co-operation within NATO.

Valley of the Ogre

Huge Avalanche Buries Nine Men

TURIN, Italy (AP) — A giant avalanche of snow thundered down an Alpine mountainside yesterday, burying 37 workers in a power plant barracks in the isolated valley of the Ogre.

Twenty-two men, awakened by the roar in time to run for the doors, dug their way to safety and went on skis for aid.

Rescuers from nearby barracks dug for 12 hours and brought out five more persons alive. They also recovered nine bodies. One man still is missing.

Those rescued were reported in fairly good condition.

The avalanche crashed down into the Vall dell'Ogre — the Valley of the Ogre — 6,000 feet up in the Italian Alps. A force of 100 men there has been digging an electric power tunnel.

One survivor said those who escaped were awakened by the roar of the sliding snow and were running for the doors when the avalanche hit.

The huge snow mass wrenched the barracks from its foundations and moved it nearly 50 feet before burying the building.

The whole mountainous region is snowbound and roads leading in to the valley were blocked by other avalanches.

U.S. Alerted Navy For Berlin Crisis

NEW YORK (UPI) — A vast U.S. Navy task force armed with atomic weapons was assigned to positions of readiness during the tense Berlin deadline crisis last May, a high Navy officer revealed yesterday.

Vice-Adm. William R. Smedberg, commander of the U.S. Second Fleet, told the American Ordnance Association that the fleet was ordered to rendezvous at sea last May 18 although all ships had been scheduled to remain in their home ports that last two weeks of May.

Open Books MP To Try Again

OTTAWA (CP) — A Vancouver MP plans to renew his battle to require private companies which are wholly-owned subsidiaries of large corporations to disclose their financial operations.

Ernest Broome, Vancouver industrial engineer and Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver South, said Wednesday he plans to introduce a private bill at the forthcoming session of Parliament on the subject.

He was unsuccessful in an attempt last session to require such private companies to make annual statements of financial operations under the Companies Act.

Rather than seek another amendment to the Companies Act Mr. Broome said, he will introduce a bill concerning financial statements to provide that private companies which are wholly-owned or controlled by public companies be considered as public companies.

Private companies are those with fewer than 50 shareholders and as such do not have to comply with the Companies Act requirement that public companies make annual reports of financial operations to the government.

Guide Lists Ski Areas

Resident and visiting skiers will have a handy guide to British Columbia's principal skiing areas in an illustrated booklet now being distributed by the B.C. Travel Bureau.

The booklet, titled "Skiing in British Columbia," describes 25 different areas throughout the province from Vancouver Island to Dawson Creek, where members of ski clubs and individual sportsmen may enjoy excellent snow conditions from December until May or June.

Not Only Crooks Cheat on Job Insurance

By R. O. MARRION
(First of a series.)

Upright characters as well as outright cheats break the law for unemployment insurance money. This fact, on discovery, is surprising. But on consideration it ceases to be amazing.

Nor is it amazing, after study, that a single set of unemployment figures can convey despair to some, comfort to others; that one man can use the figures to show all's well with Canada and another can use them to show things never were so bad, and that most of us end up confused.

Confusion and misunderstanding, it appears, surround and pervade the whole matter of unemployment and unemployment insurance in the public mind. Vancouver on an October morning isn't foggy.

Misunderstanding helps lead Mary to persuade her boss Joe to dismiss her from her job as "unsatisfactory" so that she can collect unemployment benefits while she is at home waiting and preparing for the baby that's six months off.

Misunderstanding helps lead Joe, respected for his integrity, to go along with her request. He breaks the law perhaps more innocently than Mary, but he breaks it.

And the result of their actions may be that the public is again, although ever so slightly, misled and confused: Canada has another to add to the statistics, another unemployed female, humming happily around her kitchen.

Why the confusion?

A main reason, it seems, is that Canada's unemployment insurance is not the kind of insurance you go out and buy or a salesman comes and sells to you. If it were, it couldn't be the pig in a poke that it is to millions of the Canadians who "buy" it because they are compelled to.

Victoria Area Rocked

Thundering Blast Caused by Jets

Residents
Frantic
For News

A thundering explosion shattered the night sky above Victoria last night, rocking the area for miles around.

The echoing blast began about 7.30 p.m. with a dull roar, climaxed a second or two later with a shattering boom that rattled windows and sent anxious householders to their doors and then to their phones to track down the source.

ANXIOUS CALLS

Police and armed services switchboards were swamped with calls.

More than 100 calls came into The Daily Colonist alone during a 10-minute period.

PROBABLE CAUSE

A United States Air Force officer at McChord Air Force base near Tacoma, Wash., called by the Colonist, said four supersonic jet fighters were over Victoria about 7.30 p.m. and probably caused the blast by smashing the sound barrier.

700 MILES AN HOUR

He said the planes, F-102s, were flying about 32,000 feet high and travelling at more than 700 miles an hour.

This was later confirmed by Air Sea Rescue at Vancouver where an official said they had reports of U.S. aircraft over southern Vancouver Island.

HAD TO GUESS

But police and armed representatives here had to guess at the cause as they answered hundreds of telephoned calls for information.

A general panic was probably averted in the area by the reply: "It is probably an aircraft breaking the sound barrier."

The army, navy and police had not been advised in advance of any exercises over this area.

The blast rattled windows and shook houses to the foundations, callers told the Colonist. One man said he was "scared to death. I thought we were being bombed."

ANTENNA FALLS

Mrs. Hilda Walkburn, 525A Michigan, blamed the boom for tearing down her television antenna.

Many residents reported a glow over the Canadian Industries Ltd. explosive plant at James Island following the blast.

A company spokesman said no explosion had occurred on the island, and he could not account for the glow over the area.

DOORS OPENED

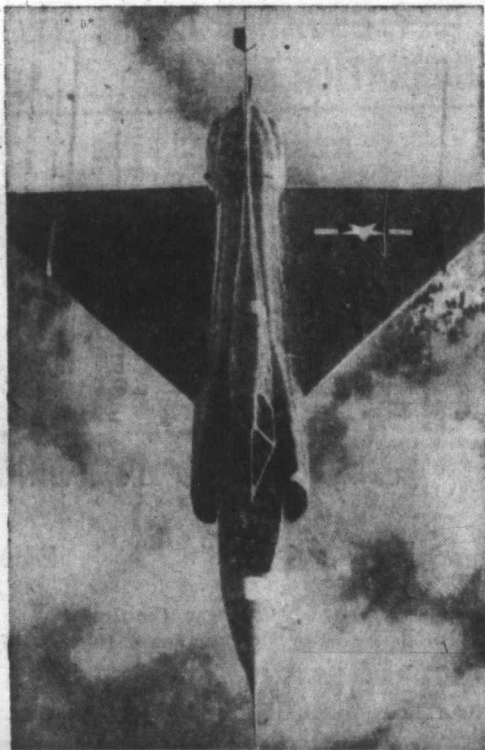

George Gdniss, 4018 White-rock, said he saw the swinging doors of a Cadboro Bay drug store suddenly open during the "boom."

Saanich police received at least 70 calls following the "scare," Cpl. Edward Anderson said.

More than 50 calls were received by Oak Bay police within a few minutes while Esquimalt received only six.

ODD QUESTIONS

Callers in Oak Bay asked many "embarrassing questions," an officer said, such as "what are we going to do about all this racket?"

F-102-A
... boomed through "barrier."

Chisholm Charges:

Election Coloring Birth Control Stand

The fact that this is election year in the United States has influenced President Eisenhower in his stand on birth control, Dr. Brock Chisholm said last night.

President Eisenhower had said earlier that as long as he is president, the United States will not provide birth control information to other nations to help them solve the overpopulation problem. "That's not our business," he told a press conference.

KILLED PROPOSAL

This, in effect, killed the recommendation of a committee set up by Mr. Eisenhower that the U.S. give such advice when it is requested, according to Dr. Chisholm.

"But they are beginning an election year down there," he said, "and anything said by any politician has to be considered in that light. If such a recommendation had been made two years ago, or had not been made until next year, it would certainly have a better chance of being considered."

NOT GOOD

"Eisenhower is under the kind of religious pressure where he has to think of it in this manner," Dr. Chisholm said, "but he is not thinking of it in a manner that is good for the world."

Meanwhile, Dr. Chisholm's own thinking on the matter drew fire from Most Rev. W. M. Duke, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Vancouver, who said he is "suggesting a moral evil to solve a physical one."

Archbishop Duke was commenting on a statement by Dr. Chisholm that the church should abandon its faith that God will feed the world, and remove its ban on artificial birth control.

"FEED THE HUNGRY"

"The church's solution to overpopulation is to feed the hungry," Archbishop Duke declared.

"I can't agree with him, and neither do many Roman Catholics," Dr. Chisholm shot back last night.

"There is no way of distributing food on a world-wide basis, and some countries are even cutting down on their production of food," he added.

"DISGRACE"

Earlier in Detroit, Rev. Dr. R. Norris Wilson, who heads the overseas relief arm of the National Council of Churches, said it would be a "disgrace" if the United States refused birth control aid to underdeveloped nations.

"The United States, through medical aid, has helped bring about the problem of overpopulation," he said, "and it has a moral obligation to help combat this problem."

He said contraception was the only immediate means of avoiding starvation in many underdeveloped nations.

"There is nothing immoral about family planning," Dr. Wilson said, "any more than there is anything immoral about eliminating disease to lengthen the age of a person."

Quadra Home Burns When Heater Tips

A Victoria man died in Royal Jubilee Hospital at 11.30 last night from severe burns suffered as fire swept a two-storey frame house at 1018 Quadra Street.

William Armstrong was rushed to hospital minutes after being dragged from the smoke-filled building shortly after 10.30 p.m. His wife, Pauline, followed after being given artificial respiration and oxygen at the scene. She is listed in satisfactory condition, suffering from smoke and shock.

HEATER TIPPED

Fire apparently broke out when Armstrong knocked over an oil heater in the front room of the house. The Armstrongs resided in the Balmoral Apartments, 820 Balmoral, but had been visitors at the Quadra house, owned by James Carlin, for the past three days.

Mr. Carlin, who arrived at his home just as firemen finished battling the blaze, said he had not seen the Armstrongs since early afternoon, but that they had been drinking during the day.

DRAGGED OUT DOOR

Sobbing almost incoherently that "Bill kicked over the stove," Mrs. Armstrong was dragged out the rear door by police and an unidentified member of the Century Toppers Car Club. Const. Albert Wells applied artificial respiration until fireman William Dobb administered oxygen.

Meanwhile, firemen pushed through the hall to pick up Mr. Armstrong, stiff and blackened beyond recognition. One police constable who helped put him in the ambulance described it as "the worst case of burns I have ever seen."

COMPLETELY GUTTED

Ground floor of the house was completely gutted. The twisted wreckage of the oil heater lay in a heap in the corner of the living room.

"I don't know how it could happen," Mr. Carlin told Deputy Fire Chief James Beales. He did not know that the Armstrongs had not got out safely.

"Oh, no!" he sobbed when he learned they were taken to hospital. "They are such good people."

BOY PRAISED

Police praised the work of the unidentified boy who helped pull Mrs. Armstrong from the building. One of the ambulance operators told a crowd that had gathered.

"I don't know who it was that helped, but thanks. It was a good job."

Six-Mile-Wide Wall of Water

Wave Crushes Valley

'Dim Lights' Of Town Under Sea

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters)—A dam on the French Riviera burst Wednesday and loosed a 15-foot wall of water which smashed a path of destruction six miles wide.

The town of Frejus, near St. Raphael, was right in the path of the deluge which poured out of the wrecked Malpasset dam.

About 60 bodies had been recovered five hours after the storm-weakened dam gave way.

HIT LIKE HAMMER

One rescuer said the roaring waters "hit like a hammer over six miles."

A train turned over near Frejus and two coaches were submerged in the water. At least two passengers were reported missing.

The swirling mass of water sliced right through to the sea.

HOUSES TUMBLE

The rescue official said the wall of water "tumbled farm buildings and houses as if they were cards and tore away the railroad line as if it had been made of straw."

A special "public calamity" plan—held in readiness for such calamities—was ordered into effect in the Riviera departments (provinces of the Var, Alpes-Maritimes and Bouches-du-Rhone).

CALAMITY PLAN

The plan allows regional authorities to requisition all available means for relief and rescue operations.

One police patrol car sent this message:

"This is horrible. Everything is under water. Only dim lights here and there. We hear heart-rending cries."

RUSHING TRAINS

A report told of inhabitants in the northern part of the town hearing a loud rumbling "as if several trains were rushing at us," when a 15-foot wall of water swept down the Reyran River valley.

Houses collapsed under the impact and automobiles and trucks were swept away.

MUD FOLLOWS

The flood rushed through the town for more than half an hour, followed by a mass of red mud from the river.

Plans Approved For Huge Dam

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for construction of a $611,000,000 hydro-power dam project on the Peace River in north-eastern British Columbia were given final approval Wednesday by directors of Peace River Power Development Company Limited.

Before the company can proceed with construction government approval must be given. If it is obtained, the company said in a statement Wednesday, construction could begin next summer.

'Ultimatum' Seals Carrothers Report

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner told a student audience last night the provincial government refuses to publish the Carrothers report on the civil service because of an ultimatum laid down by the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

"If the civil service lays out an ultimatum, then the government won't comply," the attorney-general told 2,000 UBC students.

"Any good government would refuse such an ultimatum."

Duncan to Go Ahead With Hospital Plan

Work Put In Hand

DUNCAN—Plans have been started to build a $2,000,000 165-bed hospital to replace the 40-year-old 109-bed King's Daughters' Hospital.

A Victoria firm of architects have been appointed to draw up plans for a building on 8.52 acres of land on Gibbins Road. The start of the work was announced last night by Ken Noton, hospital administrator, and secretary of a hospital planning committee.

COSTS SHARED

A referendum will be held sometime next year in each of the four surrounding hospital areas, he said. Costs will be shared between them, based on the percentage of patients from the areas.

An eight-man building committee, consisting of two members from each district, has also been appointed.

Mr. Noton said the site—suggested to the planning committee by a sub-committee—is already owned by the hospital and is twice the size of the present property on which the old hospital stands at Cavell and Jubilee streets.

LACKED SEWERS

Only one other site was discussed, but it was not accepted because it lacked sewers.

Hospital statistics are now being prepared for the last five years to show the patient occupancy percentage from each district.

"The committee felt that the cost distribution on the basis of occupancy is the fairest method after taking everything into consideration," Mr. Noton said.

The committee appointed Birley, Simpson and Wagg of Victoria because the architects have "considerable experience in building hospitals in the province" and because they are close to this district and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

COMMITTEE NAMED

Appointed to the building committee are Sir Phillip Livingston and C. B. Meredith of Koksilah hospital district; Aldermen Steve and James Saunders of Duncan; Gunnar Neilsen and L. B. Bailey of Lake Cowichan; Councillors Donald Morton and Tony Staples of North Cowichan. Chairman will be H. B. Matthews, head of the KDH board, with Mr. Noton as secretary.

It will probably take 18 months to build and a year to plan, said Mr. Noton.

Didn't Know Gin in Car Youth Says

DUNCAN—The 16-year-old driver of a car in which police found a partly-consumed bottle of gin, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of possessing alcohol.

Both sides of the case will be heard in juvenile court here Saturday before Judge A. C. Sutton.

The youth said the gin was found in his car, but claimed he did not know it was there. Police said he could hardly help but know of the presence of the bottle because the interior of the car smelled of it, indicating some had been consumed in the car.

Impairment Charge Faces Ex-Councillor

DUNCAN—Former North Cowichan councillor, Ronald McConach, pleaded not guilty to a charge of impaired driving when he appeared in court yesterday.

He was released on bail of $500 after spending the night in jail. Mr. McConach was represented by lawyer Jack Davis. Dates of the trial was set for Wednesday.

Police said Mr. McConach, who was defeated in a bid for reelection last December after serving for two years, was arrested Tuesday on the Trans-Canada Highway near here.

18 Indian Women Enrolled In Home Nursing Course

DUNCAN—Eighteen women here are taking part in British Columbia's only civil defence home nursing for Indians.

E. C. Bolin, city and North Cowichan CD co-ordinator, said it is a pilot course and it is hoped more courses for Indians will be held.

"The main idea is that in an emergency they could help look after their own people," said Mr. Bolin.

Indian affairs nurse, Mrs. Lewis Langlois, who is instructing the class, said the girls are being taught how to feed, take temperatures, bath, and in general look after a sick person. The course also includes some hygiene in the home.

Cost of the 12-week course is being paid by the civil defence, said Mr. Bolin.

In other courses—for school children and grown-ups—more than 70 persons have been taught over the last two years in the district.

Instructions for all the classes are being given by the Duncan Chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association.

Alberni Area Jobless Fewer Than Last Year

PORT ALBERNI—There were 474 persons drawing unemployment insurance in the Alberni Valley on Nov. 30 as compared with 837 at the same time last year, according to A. C. J. Harman, manager of the National Employment Service office here.

For the entire area served by the office, which includes west coast centres, the figures were 569 at the end of November this year, and 1024 on the same date in 1958.

Benefit payments made through the local office, however, amounted to $27,012 during the past month, only some $1,600 less than for November of last year.

There are 546 men and 262 women looking for employment in the area.

South Africa's sheep population in 1959 was close to 40,000,000, compared with 38,340,000 in 1957.

Owner of Pool Property To Fight Expropriation

DUNCAN—The owner of property here—which North Cowichan municipality is expropriating because firemen built a swimming pool on part of it—will take her case to the Supreme Court today.

She is Mrs. Hattie Kier who now lives in Vancouver, but owns a small piece of land fronting on Clements Street, with the rear boundary abutting the firehall property which faces Duncan Street.

By mistake the firemen built a pool on what they thought was their property, but the back fence proved to be out of line and a portion of the pool was within Mrs. Kier's land.

North Cowichan council started proceedings to get a thin slice of the land. Mrs. Kier is represented by Beamish and Woods of Burnaby. Appearing for the municipality will be Duncan lawyer David Williams.

Elks Club Conviction Quashed in Duncan

DUNCAN—County Court Judge Arnold Hanna yesterday quashed a conviction and $1,000 fine against the Lake Cowichan Elks Club on a technicality.

Appeal lawyers David Williams of Duncan and Angelo Branca of Vancouver charged after the trial that the Crown had failed to prove to the court the existence of regulations governing the keeping of guest books.

The Elks Club had been charged with failing to keep correct records of guests and their sponsors allowed into the licensed premises July 6.

They were convicted and fined by Magistrate A. L. Anderson at Lake Cowichan. Crown prosecutor D. K. McAdam of Duncan maintained the ruling was covered under the other sections and didn't have to be proved.

Ladysmith Logger Dies In Accident

LADYSMITH—William Skoliski, 34, of Ladysmith, was killed Tuesday in a logging accident several miles west of here.

Police say the accident occurred while Skoliski was bucking timber. A log he had just sawed was reported to have rolled over him.

He had been employed by the Dana Logging Company of Ladysmith.

Not Only Crooks Cheat on Job Insurance

By R. O. MARRION
(First of a series.)

Upright characters as well as outright cheats break the law for unemployment insurance money. This fact, on discovery, is surprising. But on consideration it ceases to be amazing.

Nor is it amazing, after study, that a single set of unemployment figures can convey despair to some, comfort to others; that one man can use the figures to show all's well with Canada and another can use them to show things never were so bad, and that most of us end up confused.

Confusion and misunderstanding, it appears, surround and pervade the whole matter of unemployment and unemployment insurance in the public mind. Vancouver on an October morning isn't foggy.

Misunderstanding helps lead Mary to persuade her boss Joe to dismiss her from her job as "unsatisfactory" so that she can collect unemployment benefits while she is at home waiting and preparing for the baby that's six months off.

Misunderstanding helps lead Joe, respected for his integrity, to go along with her request. He breaks the law perhaps more innocently than Mary, but he breaks it.

And the result of their actions may be that the public is again, although ever so slightly, misled and confused: Canada has another to add to the statistics, another unemployed female, humming happily around her kitchen.

Why the confusion?

A main reason, it seems, is that Canada's unemployment insurance is not the kind of insurance you go out and buy or a salesman comes and sells to you. If it were, it couldn't be the pig in a poke that it is to millions of the Canadians who "buy" it because they are compelled to.

HUGE WAVE CRUSHES TOWN

Sonic Boom

Blast Rocks Area

A thundering explosion shattered the night sky above Victoria last night, rocking the area for miles around.

The echoing blast began about 7.30 p.m. with a dull roar, climaxed a second or two later with a shattering boom that rattled windows and sent anxious householders to their doors and then to their phones to track down the source.

ANXIOUS CALLS

Police and armed services switchboards were swamped with calls.

More than 100 calls came into The Daily Colonist alone during a 10-minute period.

PROBABLE CAUSE

A United States Air Force officer at McChord Air Force base near Tacoma, Wash., called by The Colonist, said four supersonic jet fighters were over Victoria about 7.30 p.m. and probably caused the blast by smashing the sound barrier.

700 MILES AN HOUR

He said the planes, F-102s, were flying about 32,000 feet high and travelling at more than 700 miles an hour.

This was later confirmed by Air Sea Rescue at Vancouver where an official said they had reports of U.S. aircraft over southern Vancouver Island.

HAD TO GUESS

But police and armed representatives here had to guess at the cause as they answered hundreds of telephoned calls for information.

The blast rattled windows and shook houses to the foundations, callers told The Colonist. One man said he was "scared to death, I thought we were being bombed."

ANTENNA FALLS

Mrs. Hilda Walken, 5254 Michigan, blamed the boom for tearing down her television antenna.

Many residents reported a glow over the Canadian Industries Ltd. explosive plant at James Island following the blast.

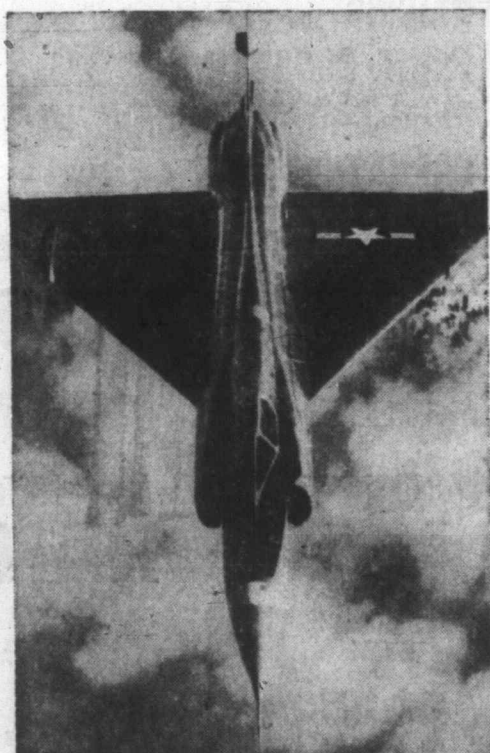

A company spokesman said no explosion had occurred on the island, and he could not account for the glow over the area.

DOORS OPENED

George Gunniss, 4018 White-rock, said he saw the swinging doors of a Cadboro Bay drug store suddenly open during the "boom."

Saanich police received at least 70 calls following the "scare". Cpl. Edward Anderson said.

More than 50 calls were received by Oak Bay police within a few minutes while Esquimalt received only six.

F-102-A
... boomed through "barrier."

Chisholm Charges:

Election Coloring Birth Control Stand

The fact that this is election year in the United States has influenced President Eisenhower in his stand on birth control, Dr. Brock Chisholm said last night.

President Eisenhower had said earlier that as long as he is president, the United States will not provide birth control information to other nations to help them solve the overpopulation problem. "That's not our business," he told a press conference.

KILLED PROPOSAL

This, in effect, killed the recommendation of a committee set up by Mr. Eisenhower that the U.S. give such advice when it is requested, according to Dr. Chisholm.

"But they are beginning an election year down there," he said, "and anything said by any politician has to be considered in that light. If such a recommendation had been made two years ago, or had not been made until next year, it would certainly have a better chance of being considered."

NOT GOOD

"Eisenhower is under the kind of religious pressure where he has to think of it in this manner," Dr. Chisholm said, "but he is not thinking of it in a manner that is good for the world."

Meanwhile, Dr. Chisholm's own thinking on the matter drew fire from Most Rev. W. M. Duke, Roman Catholic

Archbishop of Vancouver, who said he is "suggesting a moral evil to solve a physical one."

Archbishop Duke was commenting on a statement by Dr. Chisholm that the church should abandon its faith that God will feed the world, and remove its ban on artificial birth control.

'FEED THE HUNGRY'

"The church's solution to overpopulation is to feed the hungry," Archbishop Duke declared.

"I can't agree with him, and neither do many Roman Catholics," Dr. Chisholm shot back last night.

"There is no way of distributing food on a world-wide basis, and some countries are even cutting down on their production of food," he added. "There is no solution to the problem there."

'DISGRACE'

Earlier in Detroit, Rev. Dr. R. Norris Wilson, who heads the overseas relief arm of the National Council of Churches, said it would be a "disgrace" if the United States refused birth control aid to underdeveloped nations.

"The United States, through medical aid, has helped bring about the problem of overpopulation," he said, "and it has a moral obligation to help combat this problem."

He said contraception was the only immediate means of avoiding starvation in many underdeveloped nations.

"There is nothing immoral about family planning," Dr. Wilson said, "any more than there is anything immoral about eliminating disease to lengthen the age of a person."

Any good government would refuse such an ultimatum.

Fire apparently broke out when Armstrong knocked over an oil heater in the front room of the house. The Armstrongs resided in the Balmoral Apartments, 820 Balmoral, but had been visitors at the Quadra house, owned by James Carlin, for the past three days.

Mr. Carlin, who arrived at his home just as firemen finished battling the blaze, said he had not seen the Armstrongs since early afternoon, but that they had been drinking during the day.

Police praised the work of the unidentified boy who helped pull Mrs. Armstrong from the building. One of the ambulance operators told a crowd that had gathered:

"I don't know who it was that helped, but thanks. It was a good job."
